White House Denial and FBI Launches a Probe

TOP TEAM—Leon Jaworski, chief Watergate prosecutor, and one of his assistant prosecutors, Jill Volner arrive at Federal Court to hear more testimony on the latest Watergate tape controversy. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI has launched an investigation to determine who erased a key portion of one of President Nixon's Watergate tapes.

An FBI spokesman confirmed the investigation is under way, but gave no details. It was reportedly requested by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. The Westinghouse Broadcasting network said Jaworski had been assured by FBI Director Clarence Kelley that the investigation would be safeguarded from any White House influence. The Justice Department declined comment.

Court evidence now seems to indicate at least part of the erasure occurred at the White House within a 40-minute period in the early afternoon last Oct. 1, shortly after the machine believed responsible was delivered.

Although both the tape and the recorder at the time were in the possession of Nixon's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, the evidence does not show who was responsible for pushing the buttons that caused the erasure.

Miss Woods says it was not she, and the White House said Wednesday it was not the President, either accidentally or deliberately.

White House officials say President Nixon did not erase 18½ minutes of a key Watergate tape, but beyond that they had virtually no information to offer on what happened.

Presidential spokesman Gerald L. Warren Wednesday denied that Nixon himself had erased the tape, either accidentally or deliberately.

But beyond this, White House officials, both publicly and privately, declined to comment on the disclosure by a team of experts in U. S. District Court that a critical portion of a recording of Nixon's conversation on the Watergate burglary with his former Chief of Staff, H. R. Haldeman, apparently had been erased.

"It hurts, it hurts," said one middle level presidential aide. Others solicited for comment simply shrugged and said nothing.

Despite a barrage of questions, Warren declined to say anything beyond issuing a brief statement from Nixon's lawyers saying that other technical testimony has not yet been heard and that "premature judgments ... are altogether unwarranted."

He declined to say whether Nixon was disturbed by the findings of the panel, named jointly by the White House and the Special Prosecutor to determine the cause of a mysterious gap in a recording of Nixon's conversation with Haldeman three days after the burglary of the National Democratic headquarters in 1972.

He declined to say whether Nixon had discussed the new development with his lawyers, whether other presidential tapes which might also be sought as evidence in the case are well guarded or whether Nixon was conducting his own investigation into who is responsible for the erasure.

Chief U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica continued his efforts to solve the mystery today, as two more Secret Service agents whose responsibilities included care of the White House tapes were recalled to the stand.

Sirica said Wednesday he hopes to wrap up his hearings on the tapes case—which began Nov. 1—by the end of the week. He said he is considering whether to recommend that it be referred to a grand jury for possible criminal action.

At issue is the tape of a conversation Nixon had June 20, 1972, just three days after the bugging arrests at the Watergate, with then-White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman. The tape is marred in the middle by a loud buzz lasting 18-½ minutes that obliterates any voices.

Haldeman's own notes of that meeting, introduced as evidence before Sirica, show that the discussion concerned Watergate and a need to "be on the attack for diversion."

Miss Woods, assigned by the President to transcribe portions of that and other tapes subpoenaed by Watergate prosecutors, testified in late November that she had an "accident" while working with the June 20 tape the afternoon of Oct. 1.

She said she had been distracted by a telephone call and might have pushed the "record" button by mistake instead of "stop" while keeping her foot on a pedal that kept the machine moving, thus perhaps erasing 4-½ to 5 minutes but no more.

This past Tuesday, a panel of six audio experts jointly approved by the White House and Watergate prosecutors reported to Sirica that the erasure could only have happened through hand operation of the keyboard, not by means of a foot pedal.

Further, the experts said, the buzz resulted from at least five and perhaps as many as nine separate erase-and-rerecord actions, each requiring manual operation of the controls. And they said the Uher 5000 machine Miss Woods used "almost surely" was the one used to erase all 18-½ minutes.

Nader Claims Energy Crisis 'Fabricated'

WASHINGTN (U P I) — Terming the energy crisis an oil industry fabrication, Ralph Nader urged Congress today to legislate new controls on the oil industry to keep consumer energy costs down.

With new and sometimes conflicting supply and demand statistics coming out daily from the industry and government, congressmen, mostly Democrats, are also pressing for action to soothe the public.

Five senators and three representatives Wednesday jointly called for a 90-day freeze on prices of domestic crude oil and petroleum products, charging the Nixon administration with giving in to "the extortion of the American people by the major petroleum companies."

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R. Pa. said he will propose a bill to create a federal commission to subsidize domestic fuel production for the purpose of making the country self-sufficient in energy and to regulate U.S. oil firms.

Unless the lawmakers act, "the fabricated energy crisis of 1974 will generate a trillion dollar trauma for consumers over the next 20 years." Nader said in prepared testimony before a House Small Business Subcommittee.

School hours to remain the same in New Paltz district despite Daylight Savings time. Story of page 4.

He asked Congress to set up a government-run corporation to explore for gas and oil on federally owned lands.

A House Interior subcommittee began hearings today to determine the extent of oil and natural gas under public land.

Nader said oil from federal lands could be sold cheaply to small independent dealers who are "now being squeezed out of business" because they are forced to buy high-priced imported oil and cannot compete with the cheaper domestically produced oil sold by many of the major producers.

He also urged Congress to issue federal charters to oil corporations, which are now chartered by the states, and to enforce the antitrust laws "to break up the power of the big oil firms and promote a competitive industry from the oil well to the gas station."

As oil industry leaders heard from government officials and congressmen Wednesday that there is public suspicion about the reality of an energy crisis, the American Petroleum Institute (API) said domestic crude oil production and crude imports were lower last week than the week before.

API said gasoline stocks were down along with the "middle distillate" fuel used for diesel oil and home heating oil, but substantially higher than they were a year ago.

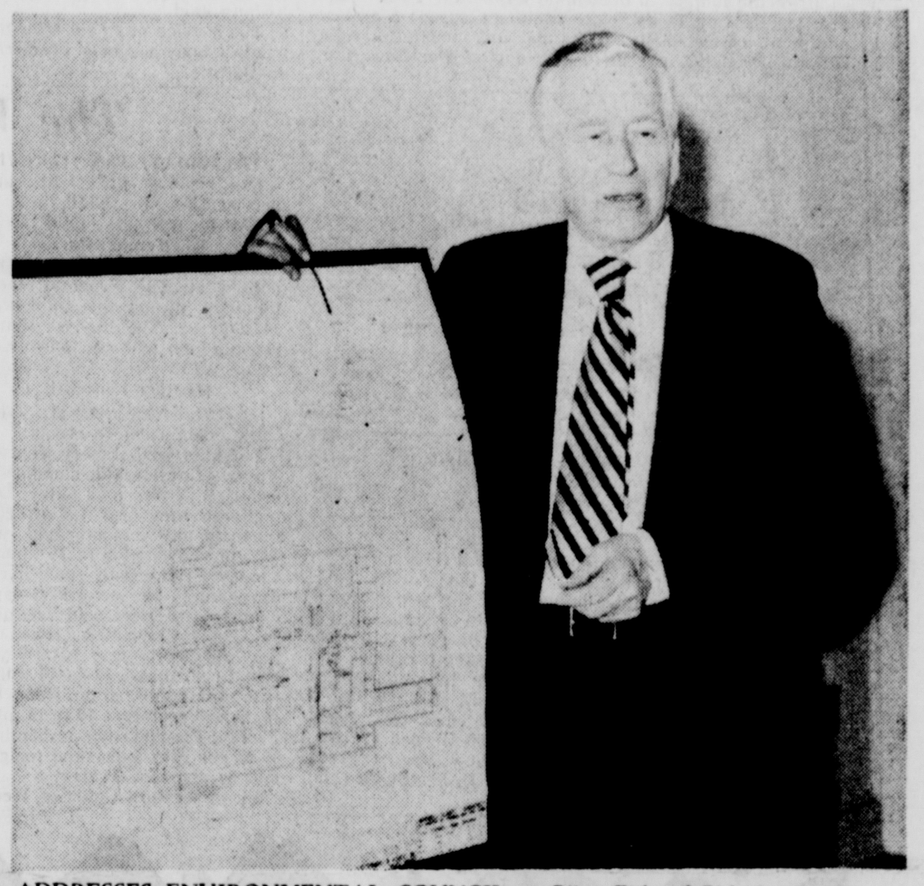

Federal Energy Office chief William Simon said fuel supplies are expected to be 13 per cent below demand during the first three months of this year, but that "the magnitude of this shortage should not cause us to panic." He said gasoline consumpion in the last week of December was 18.7 per cent less than normal.

FE policy analysis chief William Johnson warned oil industry leaders that among congressmen and the public there are "major suspicions of the oil companies that could have ugly results."

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., asked API to explain why oil prices are climbing when supplies are higher and demand lower than last year. He charged that fuel stocks in the country are 28.5 per cent higher han a year ago while demand is up only 5.4 per cent.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., said he is introducing a bill to roll back recent price increases on crude oil from wells that were already producing before world prices began soaring.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said in Boston Congress should put higher priority on legislation to set up a "Federal Bureau of Investigation" within the oil industry to locate reserves and monitor marketing cost and company profits.

How to Regenerate Solid Waste and Sewage

By CARL GRAHAM

KINGSTON

Cars that give up to 100 miles a gallon? Homes heated without external fuel sources? A process that "mines" landfills and turns byproducts into such diverse items as organic fertilizer, cement block and blacktopping? It's all possible if we make proper use of the materials put here on earth for us, according to Pliny Fisk.

Fisk was the featured speaker at Wednesday Night's meeting of the Ulster County Environmental Management Council. He described in detail an industrial process that his firm Fisk Systems Inc. of Croton-on-Hudson has developed to regenerate solid waste and sewage into numeous byproducts, including glass and metals not now being recovered.

Mrs. Shirley Kobran, EMC chairman, said that invitations had been sent to county and town officials, many of them faced with urgent landfill problems, to attend the meeting, in an effort to establish a dialogue between the council and municipalities interested in waste disposal problems. About 30 persons showed up for the meeting in the Statewide Savings and Loan building on Wall Street.

Fisk, a chemist and industrial engineer, said he had developed his process to make use of waste products and help ease disposal problems.

"Bacteria will do a wonderful job for us," he told his audience. "It's quite simple to make land produce. Just add 20 tons of organic compost (such as produced by his system) to an acre of sand and then add another two tons a year and the land will produce forever."

Fisk said he had been promised a federal grant by the Environmental Protection Agency for developmental work. EPA has expressed an interest in his system's possibly producing methane gas, which is used as a base for methanol. Fisk said that methanol added to ordinary gasoline materially reduces air pollutants resulting from combustion. His system does not now produce methane but could be converaed to do so, he said.

Fisk outlined his company's six-phase program that starts with a simple system of waste treatment and progresses to a complex operation in which virtually everything in the raw material is recovered. Each part of the process serves as a building block for later phases and does not have to be replaced, he explained.

He cited the Wilmington, Delaware, plant, which uses the first phase of his system, as an example. The plant grinds about 1,000 tons of waste a day at about 14 cents a ton. In the near future he said the plant will be making from $8,000 to $10,000 a day from sale of metals and other materials recovered in the process. Another plant, on the Isle of Jersey near the French coast, already has contracted more than six years ahead for the sale of the organic fertilizer it produces, he said.

Fisk cited the case of a friend of his who developed a unique ultra-sonic device that can be attached to the carburetor of an ordinary car. The device enables the engine to burn "dirty" fuels, including crankcase oil, by cleaning them ultrasonically, increases gasoline mileage up to 100 miles a gallon, and reduces air pollution considerably. Fisk said the device had been "killed" by a large auto manufacturer.

"These large firms have no right to buy up patents and put them on the shelf," he said. "I consider myself a part of the establishment, but I'm getting mad and becoming a radical."

Fisk said he was building a home for himself that would use a combination of special insulation, methane gas from a compost pile, and solar energy to make him totally independant of outside fuel sources.

Don Bruyn, chairman of EMC's Resources Recovery Committee, said that the group's sponsorship of Fisk's speech did not imply a contract with his firm.

"At this point it would be premature to rush into a system without exploring all the possibilities," he said. "We are trying to find the best (waste dispoal) system for the county."

Mrs. Kobran said that any solution of landfill problems must include a resource recovery plan.

"Just to dump everything on the ground is no solution," she said.

Out of Court Settlement in Malpractice Suit

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

A malpractice suit against Benedictine Hospital and three doctors involving the death in 1970 of an 18-year-old boy has been settled out of court. That surprise development occurred Wednesday at the Ulster County Courthouse.

The parents of Edward Vargo, 18, at the time of his death on Aug. 12, 1970, had been seeking $250,000 in damages from Doctors Gerald P. Gorman, Jalal Mahdavian and Roman M. Bodnar and Benedictine Hospital, charging them and the hospital with negligence in failing to properly diagnose and treat their son.

Young Vargo was injured when he fell from the seat of a sanitation truck at around 5 p.m. on Aug. 12, 1970. He was taken to Benedictine Hospital, treated there, and then later transferred to Kingston Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival. The youth was alive when he left Benedictine.

Supreme Court Justice George Cobb announced at 2:15 p.m. Wednesday that he had been advised by counsel from both parties that (during a lengthy luncheon recess), they had agreed among themselves to dispose and terminate the case. Justice Cobb then dismissed the two woman, four man jury that had been hearing evidence in the case only since Monday.

None of the attorneys in the case would comment on the settlement, other than Joseph Kelner, representing the Vargos, who said the settlement was "satisfactory to all."

Mrs. Vargo had no comment. Francis X. Tucker, attorney for Benedictine, had no comment and neither did Luke Pittoni, attorney for the physicians.

And Justice Cobb, questioned in his chambers, said he would have nothing more to say than what he said from the bench in announcing the settlement and dismissing the jury.

During the morning session, itself cut short by Judge Cobb, testimony was heard via written affidavits taken during a pretrial examination on Nov. 30, 1971, from Gerard Nocton, assistant administrator at Benedictine from the supervising nurse at Benedictine the night young Vargo was brought in and from a nurse assigned to the intensive care unit at the hospital who was brought into the case by the supervising nurse.

Nocton was questioned on the various rules and regulations involving the operation of the emergency room.

Supervising Nurse Clare Egan told the jury that she was first made aware the Vargo youth was in the hospital at "around 6:45" but then later said she couldn't remember exactly and placed the time at between six and seven o'clock.

Testimony determined that the youth's blood pressure was taken "three or four times" by the emergency room nurse, Jean Bingham, that Nurse Bingham also checked his blood type and had it cross checked, and that young Vargo was given intravenous feeding while at Benedictine.

Nurse Egan said she was notified by the switchboard to go to the x-ray department where she said she observed a "very seriously injured boy who showed signs of shock." She said the youth was "extremely restless," and had rapid pulse. she said she took his pulse and found it "rapid and weak."

In the meantime, an order from Dr. Joseph Conrad had come down to transfer the patient to Kingston Hospital. Nurse Breslin assisted when young Vargo was moved from the hospital stretcher to the ambulance stretcher.

Landslide Buries Nine Men in Building

CANYONVILLE, Ore. (UPI) — A raging storm that roared down from the Pacific Northwest mellowed to a drizzle today but not before triggering a mud slide that buried nine men near this southwestern Oregon town.

The Douglas County sheriff's office said the small telephone repeater station in which the men were working was lost in a gooey mud slide 125 feet deep and 400 feet long Wednesday night.

Another three persons in Northern California were listed as dead from the storm, two of them a brother and sister who were swept away when a log jam broke and a creek surged over its banks.

Ken Kelley, a workman who missed the Canyonville mud slide because he was off getting coffee, said: "Then came another slide and covered up everything we had for landmarks.

"The entire canyon was full of mud and it was still coming from the top of the mountain."

Robert Cook, who managed to struggle out of the 15-by-20 foot building, said it was "pulverized" despite its walls that were made of eight-inch-thick concrete blocks.

The men had been repairing the main coaxial cable between California and Oregon, which had been damaged by an earlier landslide.

Heavy rain sent rivers overflowing their banks, triggered mud slides on major highways, washed out railroad tracks and forced evacuations of hundreds of homes in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and California. Utilities were knocked out.

In Meyers Flat in California, a brother and sister were washed into Bridge Creek at the Eel River when high water swept their home away. They were Jimmy Moore, 14, and Cathy, 13. Humboldt County sheriff's deputies said their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Moore, were safe.

Not far away, a duck hunter vanished in a gale at Big Lagoon and was listed as dead. He was Larry Gentosi, 20, of Costa Mesa, a student at Humboldt State University.

The National Weather Service said skies were partly clear with only a few reports of rain today, but a new storm was churning towards the West Coast from the Pacific Ocean. More rain is expected Friday.

pickup 6th pgh: after the rain

After the rain fell incessantly in the Pacific Northwest for two days, it roared into Northern California Wednesday.

At Dunsmuir in Siskiyou County, the town's sewage treatment plant was threatened, and city officials said that, if sewage settling ponds were flooded, the waste would be carried down the Sacramento River into picturesque Lake Shasta.

The state Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, Calif., said the respite from the rain helped ease flood conditions but the water was precariously high on the Klamath, Trinity, Van Duzen, Mad, Eel and Smith rivers.

An Amtrak train with 100 passengers was stranded by floods in Troy, Mont. The Burlington Northern main line was washed out and several freight trains stranded in Libby, Mont., and Bonner's Ferry, Idaho.

National Guardsmen, law enforcement officers, convict crews, Army Corps of Engineers workers and private citizens shored up crumbling dikes and helped in the evacuation of homes.

Action in Town of Rosendale

Supervisor Asks State Check of Bills

ROSENDALE — Concerned that several Town of Rosendale bills may have been contracted and paid for by the town "improperly," Supervisor Richard Glazer has written State Comproller Arhtur Levitt saying, these bills of $14,650 for landfill and $10,154 for town building improvement appear to "exceed the legal bid limit set by the state" ($2,500 for public works projects).

Glazer said that in reviewing the town bills for 1973, he found indications that the practice of non-bidding may have happened on former occasions.

He is asking Levitt to send a representative to meet with the town board to review and investigate the situation.

Meanwhile, Glazer has also contacted Sid Mastro Construction Company of Kingston informing the company not to exceed the $2,500 limit in connection with the work presently being done on the landfill.

Glazer allowed, however, that the landfill work should continue and the board voted to, in an emergency situation, continue such work but to put the work out for bid as soon as possible, hopefully within 20 days. Councilman Paul Stroebel abstained.

Glazer also told of a letter from the State Environmental Conservation Department which states the town is still in violation of state law regarding its landfill operation. The newly elected supervisor said that project was markedly improved since the first of the year and that a meeting with the state pertaining to future landfill plans will be held Jan. 23.

The board passed a unanimous resolution to actively take part in a proposed joint landfill operation with surrounding towns and the City of Kingston.

Otto Person was appointed the new building inspector by a vote of 3 to 2, replacing the incumbent Norman Tierney. Stroebel and Justice Raymond LeFever voted for Tierney while Glazer, Councilman William Ritter and Justice Albert Morelli voted for Person, a retired conractor who has been in the area since 1938.

Elmer Hoffman was reappointed custodian of the dump and bis were opened for a tractor for the landfill. Glazer said none would be accepted until a study and report of the bids are made.

Memorial Services Held for Teenager

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — About 350 persons crowded into the Unitarian Church Wednesday for a memorial service for a kidnaped teen-aged boy who died shortly before his father paid a $15,000 ransom.

About one third of the persons at the church were classmates of Daniel W. Ebersole, 14. The Rev. Duke Gray read a personal eulogy for Daniel prepared by members of the boy's family.

"Danny Ebersole had an ability to handle injuries in a manly fashion and we hoped it helped in his final ordeal," the tribute said.

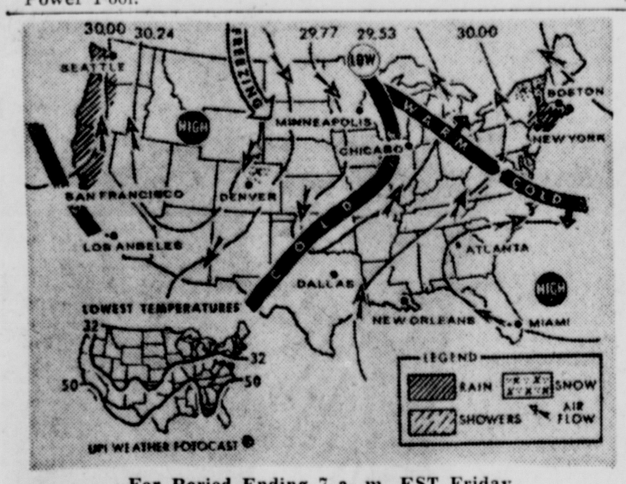

The service was held after the youth's body had been cremated in Buffalo.

Daniel's body was found gagged and tied to a tree Sunday after the youth was kidnaped near his home in suburban Lakewood last week.

Although his father, Dr. Glen M. Ebersole, paid $15,000 for his son's return, an autopsy revealed Daniel died of a broken skull two days before the ransom was paid.

Three Jamestown-area teenagers charged with his abduction are being held in Buffalo on $100,000 bail each.

Chautauqua County District Attorney Robert Sullivan said he is working on murder indictments against Martin C. Whitmore, 19, and Kenneth LeRoy Williams, 18, both of West Ellicott; and Jeffrey L. Swan, 18, of Lakewood.

Gov. Wilson's State Budget Will Be Record $9.49 Billion

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—Governor Wilson's soon to be unveiled state budget will total $9.49 billion, thus maintaining the Rockefeller tradition of ever increasing state spending, informed sources have told UPI.

The record size spending plan, buoyed upward by the same inflationary pressures felt throughout the economy, will add 8 per cent to the current state budget of $8.81 billion—an increase approaching $700 million.

An important assumption made by fiscal analysts crafting the details of Wilson's budget proposal, which is to be presented to the legislature next Tuesday, is that the energy crisis and its effect on the state's economy will not drastically cut into the tax dollars available for state programs, the source said.

The governor's fiscal experts are banking on a continued high rate of inflation to finance the massive spending plan — the same economic force which, in large part, permitted state budgets under former Governor Rockefeller to swell from $2.02 billion in 1959-60 to $8.81 billion in the current fiscal year.

While state costs go up, so do revenues from income taxes on increased salaries earned by taxpayers. As the prices of consumer goods go up, so does state income from the sales tax.

The governor's record high budget proposal is expected to require no new taxes to finance. In fact, the proposal, according to knowledgeable sources, will be based on the continued suspension of the 2½ per cent surcharge on state income taxes.

When the legislature voted last year to suspend collection of the surcharge it was estimated to represent an $80 million tax cut.

Although Wilson outlined no new expensive programs during his Jan. 9 annual message to the legislature, he left unstated what he intended to do on two items which will absorb much of the increase in state spending his budget will outline—state aid to education and mass transit.

Already during the now two-week-old lawmaking session a $100 million loan to New York City to temporarily prop up the 35-cent transit fare has been approved. And that expenditure, although the money is to be repaid to the state over the next five years, must come out of cash accounts.

A permanent program of state aid for mass transit statewide—which Wilson has said he is committed to — will be much more expensive.

Wilson's "State of the State" message outlined a subsidy program based on $100 million from the state, matched with $100 million in local funds plus $200 million from the federal government. Informed observers say there is little hope of obtaining a $200 million commitment from the federal government however, so the actual cost of a mass transit aid program remains up in the air.

Observers feel that Wilson wants to, and will be able to find the money to make a substantial increase in state aid to education.

A special Task Force on Education Finance, with members from the legislature, the governor's staff and the education department, is working on a revision of the formula by which nearly $3 billion will be distributed to local school districts.

The natural growth of education expenses with no changes in the state's proprtionate share of the total will mean an estimated hike of $50 million from the state at a minimum.

Increases in other appropriations will reflect inflationary pressures which have been acting on all phases of the economy.

One example of this is the 12 per cent hike in welfare benefits which Wilson called for in his message to the legislature—a hike which will be effective for only three quarters of the next fiscal year, but will add $22 million to the budget.

School Supplies Bill Passes Senate

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Parochial and other nonpublic schools would be able to buy supplies and equipment through state contracts under terms of legislation approved by the Senate.

Despite the objections of one Democrat who questioned its constitutionality, the bill was passed 48-2 Wednesday and was sent to the Assembly.

The Senate also passed and sent to the Assembly Wednesday a measure granting workmen's compensation benefits for partial disability resulting from silicosis and other dust diseases.

State law now provides benefits only for total disability or death.

The school-supplies bill, sponsored by Sen. Joseph R. Pisani, R-New Rochelle, would permit nonpublic elementary and secondary schools to take advantage of the lower prices and quality guarantee of the state Office of General Services' bulk-purchasing program.

The state contracts with suppliers for various goods and equipment for its own agencies under the program, and public school districts and other units of local government are authorized to buy supplies through the same state-negotiated contracts.

The contracts are usually "open-ended," so that school districts and other buyers can order goods in any amount above $500 by dealing directly with the supplier.

During a brief debate, Sen. Karen S. Burstein, D-Nassau, said the bill might violate U.S. Supreme Court prohibitions against state support of nonpublic schools.

"We are appropriating money indirectly," she said. "If they otherwise would pay $1,500, and they instead pay $1,200, that's a $300 subsidy, in effect."

But Pisani said that the "saving of money doesn't cost the state a single penny" and, therefore, does not violate the Supreme Court's ban against direct support.

Former Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller vetoed a similar bill two years ago.

The dust-disease bill, submitted by Sen. Leon Giuffreda, R-Suffolk, is opposed by some representatives of industrial firms. They contend it is difficult to determine medically that a worker is partially disabled because of such illnesses.

The bill was designed primarily to benefit asbestos and tunnel construction workers, among others, who have to find work elsewhere after contracting a disabling dust disease, its supporters say.

New York Transit System Gets $100 Million Loan

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—New York City had $100 million in state credit today to hold its bus and subway fares at 35 cents and it would appear many upstate communities would be preparing to seek similar treatment for their mass transit systems.

With unaccustomed speed, the legislature passed and Governor Wilson signed Wednesday the bill allowing the state loan to New York City. Lawmakers were assured that commuter railroad fares in the metropolitan area also would be frozen at their present levels until May 1.

The upstate "bonus" came when legislators from those areas insisted on promises from the leadership that their communities also would be able to obtain loans to beef up transit operations.

The bills swept through the Senate 41-9, after a one - hour discussion from senators who supported the proposal. None of the nine upstate Republicans who voted against the measure spoke out publicly against the bill.

In the Assembly, action was even more swift. The assemblymen interrupted a debate on some proposed rules changes, voted 98-34 in favor of the loan measure without any comment, then returned to arguing the Democratic proposals.

As in the Senate, all of the opposition in the Assembly came from upstate Republicans.

Less than one hour later, Wilson signed the bill, commenting that he was "deeply gratified that the legislature has so promptly accepted my recommendation."

Under the new law, the state will loan the city $100 million which in turn will give the money to the City Transit Authority, the agency which operates the city's bus and subway lines under the overall control of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority.

The city will repay the loan in five equal yearly installments beginning in 1975 and supporters pledged the loan would be repaid.

Sen. John D. Caemmerer, R-East Williston, who as chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee steered the bill through the Senate, told his colleagues that Dr. William J. Ronan, chairman of the MTA, had pledged that fares also would be held at present levels on all other MTA commuter operations, including commuter railroads.

This led Sen. John J. Santucci, D-Queens, to charge that Ronan and other transit officials were a "pack of liars" because they previously had threatened to raise all fares unless aid was forthcoming.

Two Democratic senators from Buffalo, James Griffin and Joseph A. Tauriello, demanded that the legislature's leaders guarantee that when upstate communities needed help to subsidize transit operations it would be forthcoming.

Senate Minority Leader Joseph Zaretzki pledged that when that happened, Democrats would respond.

Doctors' Income Scored

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—State Comptroller Arthur Levitt today charged that some doctors and researchers at state - operated medical schools were earning more money in private practice than allowed by state university policy.

Levitt said the situation came to light in audits of the Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, the Upstate Medical Center in Syracuse, the state University at Buffalo and the State University at Stony Brook.

According to the auditors, one individual with a state salary of $24,613, who should have been limited to private-practice earnings of $12,307 under limitations set by SUNY's Board of Trustees, actually earned $76,129 in private income —for total earnings of $100,742.

The policy since 1951 has been to limit private-practice income for doctors to 50 per cent of their salaries as teachers in the medical centers. For resarchers, the limit was set at 20 per cent of state salaries in additional private income.

The limitation on private practice earnings was intended to limit the outside professional income of the medical faculty to ensure primary attention would be given to teaching responsibilities, the auditors noted.

In their report, the auditors said SUNY "failed to provide meaningful guidance" on ways to control outside income and that had not developed a standard method of collecting reports of such income.

A similar complaint was made in 1968, when the auditors last probed the operations of the medical schools.

In some cases, the auditors said, expense deductions from gross outside income were questionable, noting that one group had leased five autos for 26 months at a total cost of $27,560 and purchased two $100,000 individual life insurance policies at an annual premium of $5,000 —listing the items as expenses to be deducted from the gross outside income in determining net outside income.

Bing Crosby's Condition Is 'Stable'

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) — Entertainer Bing Crosby remains in stable condition and is making satisfactory progress from last weekend's lung surgery.

A hospital spokesman said Bing's mail has been swamped with get-well cards from the young and old who remember him from film and scores of best-selling songs.

Quipster Bob Hope has been phoning the hospital regularly to inquire about the health of the 69-year-old crooner.

"I took a call one morning from a man who identified himself as Irving Berlin," the hospital spokesman said. Berlin composed "White Christmas," a song which was a million-seller for Crosby.

Crosby underwent surgery Sunday for removal of an infected giant abscess from his left lung. Doctors are attempting to identify the rare fungi infection, which they believe he contracted during a duststorm while on an African safari last year.

How to get along with an energy shortage in the house.

What you can do:

A lot.

And save money doing it.

Almost everywhere around your house you use energy in one form or another: electricity, fuel oil, propane or natural gas.

Almost everywhere you may be using more of that energy than you need. Innocently wasting it.

Almost everywhere, however, there are ways to stop that waste, save energy.

Here are some of them:

Lighting. Don't burn more lights than absolutely necessary; use lower-watt bulbs; work, if you can, by a window during daylight hours.

Cooking. Bake several oven dishes at one time if possible; use sectional pans to prepare several foods on a single burner. These methods save cooking time which in turn saves fuel.

Refrigeration. Defrost your refrigerator and freezer often—they'll do better jobs on a lot less energy if they're clear of frost; don't open refrigerator or freezer doors more often than you must.

Hot Water. Take showers instead of baths—this saves water and the fuel required to heat it. Once a month drain a gallon from the hot water tank—this clears out sediment which would force the heating element to work overtime.

Furnaces. It could cost you up to $50 to have your furnace cleaned professionally. But a clean furnace will save energy and money by producing the same heat with less fuel.

Ductwork. If your home has a forced warm air heating system, you'll get the most heat for the least fuel if ductwork is the proper size and includes an adequate number of cold air returns. This will also help reduce drafts.

Insulation. It can take twice the fuel to heat (or cool) an uninsulated house as an insulated one. In winter, heat escapes most freely through the roof; you can help put a stop to this yourself by placing bags of insulating material between attic floor joists. If wall insulation is also necessary, in most cases you'll need a professional. In either event, the cost can be recouped in just a few years by sharply reduced heating (and cooling) bills.

Storm Windows and Doors. If you haven't already put in storm windows and doors, this is certainly the time to do it. Storm windows cost $20 to $50 installed, storm doors $50 to $100, but those costs will be offset by lower fuel bills over the years.

A complete list of ways to conserve energy in your home could go on and on, but even if you follow only a few of the suggestions here you will be able to live comfortably through this energy emergency.

Some of these suggestions cost money. Others cost nothing. But costly or cost-free, as energy-savers they are also money-savers. In fact, even the most expensive will give you a substantial return on your investment in the form of lower fuel and electric bills.

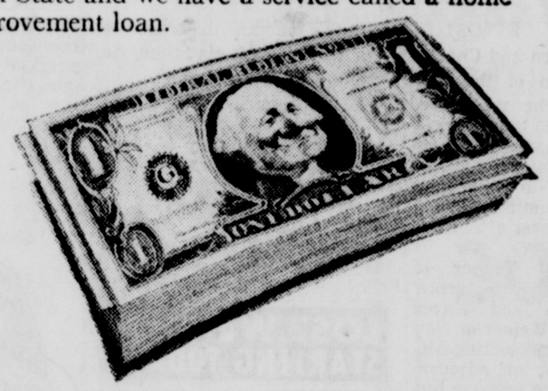

Look at it this way: equipping your house to run on minimal uses of energy is a surprisingly economical way to add to the value of your home.

What we can do:

A lot.

We might even help you pay for everything listed under "what you can do".

You see, we're the Savings Banks of New York State and we have a service called a home improvement loan.

And, chances are, there's a home improvement loan available for you at some New York State Savings Bank right now.

Why?

Well, one reason could be that Savings Banks have long had a special interest in people and their homes. In fact, more than half the homes in New York State today are financed by mortgage loans from Savings Banks.

Another reason could be that Savings Banks, as today's specialists in the human side of banking, have a genuine concern for you and matters involving your personal finance that goes far beyond the business of banking itself.

It is a concern for your basic human needs in every facet of your personal financial life—during good times and bad—a real person-to-person interest that reaches out to include such things as education for your children, protection for your family through low-cost life insurance, mortgage money to help you buy a home and loans to help you improve it. Home improvement loans.

All this, of course, in addition to the service they are named for—savings.

School Hours... 'No Change'

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ

The New Paltz Board of Education, after two hours of discussion, voted Wednesday night to have no change in the district's school hours, despite the problems Daylight Saving Time is causing. The board felt a change would cause even more problems.

Though the board had a full agenda, the only other business it transacted was the approval of the last meeting's minutes. The rest of the agenda will be conducted Wednesday, Jan. 30.

About 90 people attended the meeting, after the board had issued a prior press release that school hours were to be a topic of discussion. In voting no change in school hours, the school board acted against the recommendation of Superintendent of Schools Dr. James Hicken, who recommended a half hour delay in starting day in the district's three schools until the end of February.

Board President Mrs. Joan Bivona said the district had received many calls from parents who were concerned about their children's safety waiting along roads to be picked up by school buses in Daylight Saving Time caused darkness.

The move to put back the opening of the school day is not an uncommon one in New York State. Mrs. Bivona said the Beacon and Rhinebeck school systems were starting later until daylight begins earlier, and that all of Orange County's school districts were doing the same. There have been reports that schools in the Albany area and on Long Island were also delaying the start of the school day because of early morning darkness.

The plan most seriously considered by the board was having the high school remain at the same time, but bus the Middle School and Duzine School students together, along with the Campus School of the State University College at New Paltz. One of the big problems in opening the Middle School in the dark is the students who live in the village have to walk to school in the dark.

Opening the Middle School later but keeping the Duzine School and the High School hours the same would have eliminated that problem, and also allowed high school students to keep their after school jobs and avoided keeping the Duzine School elementary students too late in the day.

The delayed school opening was strongly supported, though not universally by the residents who attended the meeting. Those not in favor of it were working mothers, and school bus drivers, who indicated that the students were better behaved in the dark and the school bus was more visible by its flashing lights, causing drivers to stop more reliably for a stopped school bus.

Among other problems with delaying the start of school was the problem with BOCES students, who would require an additional bus in the morning and would have to leave for the afternoon program a period earlier, missing that much instructional time.

Though the board voted not to change the school hours because there were too many problems with the change—Business Administrator Frank Hamilton said after the meeting that it would take a month and 49 new bus routes to put the plan in operation the board most strongly considered—the district will be doing something.

Dr. Hicken said a program of educating the students on early morning dangers was going to be carried on, and buses will stop for individual students rather than at the collective bus stops wherever possible. The district is also to try to get some reflective tape for students to put on their coats, to stand out better for early morning motorists.

Parents are also to be requested to get together to post road guards at the places were a group of students have to be picked up, and high school students at bus stops may be requested to keep an eye on younger students.

Future Growth . . . 'Subject of Much Concern'

By JON POWERS

RHINEBECK

Schedule a meeting on planning, zoning and future growth in Rhinebeck, and you're likely to spend the whole night. . . with a lot of company. The people there are that concerned about what shape their community takes in coming years.

It wasn't quite that drastic Wednesday night, but close to 100 residents did spend several hours with Dutchess County planning officials in a wide-ranging slide show, lecture and discussion on the prospects for future development in the Rhinebeck area.

The session, informal and unofficial, was the idea of Rhinebeck town councilwoman Jane Gallow, who won election to the town board last year while leading the opposition to Douglas Palermo's controversial planned unit development project. The guests were Dutchess County Planning Director Harry Heisenbuttel and assistant planner Ken Toole.

The major point in Heisenbuttel's address Wednesday night was that the Rhinebeck area will invariably grow and expand, but that strong zoning laws and an involved citizenry can pretty much determine what shape that growth will take.

Despite that remark, Heisenbuttel stirred some controversey when he noted that the County Planning Board envisions a major "activity center" in the genral area where Routes 9 and 9G cross, and where Route 199 meets Route 9G near the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge. Many of the people weren't at all pleased with that prospect, and some apparently got the impression that the county itself was, in essence, determining the area's future development.

Not so, said Heisenbuttel. "There's a definite potential for development in Red Hook and Rhinebeck," he said, "the area is going to grow. What we're saying is that growth should be channeled between Red Hook and Rhinebeck, along Route 9, instead of allowing it to spread out and sprawl all over the area."

That "activity center" between the two Northern Dutchess communities, according to Toole, could consist of shopping centers, health care facilities, governmental centers, cultural facilities and residential developments. . . essentially a "mini-city." But Toole, reassuringly, said the county planning board considers such a concept to be "quite a few years in the future." And he added that the size and characteristics of the area would necessarily be determined at the local planning level.

Much of Wednesday's meeting concerned just that: local planning. Heisenbuttel said he considers Rhinebeck's zoning ordinance to be "a good one," although he admitted that sections dealing with planned unit developments could be more "stringent" to give the community maximum protection.

He also commented on the prospects of a town having a zoning ruling overturned in the courts, an especially relevant topic in the Town of Rhinebeck these days with reports that Palermo intends to sue the town for defeating his proposal. Heisenbuttel said that most zoning cases are lost in the courts because of procedural errors, but added that most communities in Dutchess County, apparently including Rhinebeck, have zoning ordinances that are adequate enough to justify any decisions involving specific land use procedures.

Heisenbuttel also expressed preference for a regional sewer district serving Red Hook and Rhinebeck, with a possible later connection to the Town of Milan, rather than individual systems for each of the communities.

McGivern, Culhane . . . Adjourned Again

KINGSTON

Gerald McGivern and Charles Culhane, accused of the 1968 slaying of Westchester County Sheriff's deputy on the Thruway near Plattekill, appeared again briefly in County Court on Wednesday, only to have their case adjourned until late February at the request of defense attorneys.

Attorneys Noel Tepper of Poughkeepsie, who is representing Culhane, and Karen Peters and Jack Weiner of New Paltz, who are representing McGivern, asked for an adjournment in the case to prepare motions and to have time to go over transcripts of the two previous murder trials in which they were not attorneys for the two accused.

The defense attorneys asked for a two-month adjournment, but after Assistant District Attorney Ellen Donovan termed that a "rather lengthy period," County Court Judge Raymond J. Mino put the matter over until Feb. 27 at 2 p. m.

McGivern and Culhane last appeared in County Court Dec. 14, when the case was put over until this month in order to give the defendants time to consult with their counsel.

The two men are accused of killing Deputy Sheriff William Fitzgerald, 63, on Sept. 13, 1968 during an alleged escape attempt on the Thruway while they were being transported to a Westchester County court.

Their first trial on the murder charge ended in a hung jury. Following their second trial in 1971, McGivern and Culhane were convicted of murder and sentenced to die in the electric chair. They spent nearly three years on death row in Green Haven Prison in Dutchess County before the death penalty was abolished. In 1973 the state's high court ordered a retrial on technical grounds.

Con Ed Proceeding With Storm King

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The Consolidated Edison Co. says it will go ahead with its controversial Storm King project, despite a nudge from the state asking the company to reconsider.

State Environmental Conservation Commissioner James Biggane said Wednesday he had called officials of Con Ed to a meeting last week "looking for a possible alternative" to the project.

A Con Ed spokesman confirmed that the meeting took place, but said the company had not changed its mind and "we're going ahead with it."

The company has been fighting for a decade to build a massive pumped-storage power project on Storm King Mountain near Cornwall in one of the most scenic areas of the Hudson River Valley.

Environmental groups have used suits and other tactics to try to block the project, but the state has never openly joined in their efforts.

Biggane said his decision to call the meeting "should not be interpreted as an effort to force them to stop the project."

He said he acted out of concern for "the beauty of that section of the Hudson" and because he thought an alternate power plan of some sort could be built with fewer delays.

Tax Informer Quits Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Internal Revenue Service employe, tracked down by investigators as the individual who leaked information about President Nixon's income tax returns to a newspaper, quit his job under a threat of being fired, IRS officials say.

The former employe, whom the officials refused to identify, also faced possible criminal charges for his action, but the Justice Department, after studying the case, decided against prosecution, spokesmen said.

Meanwhile, an IRS investigator who according to government sources was credited with cracking the case, received an award last month for "noteworthy contributions to the effectiveness and efficiency of the Department of the Treasury."

Spokesmen for the IRS refused to say whether the award to the agent, William J. Schaefer, was in fact connected with the Nixon tax returns or to provide any other details of the case.

According to other sources, investigators solved the mystery by tracing photocopies of the Nixon tax records to the machine which produced them at the IRS national computer center in Martinsburg, W. Va.

The IRS said disclosure of information about individual tax returns is illegal and offenses are routinely investigated.

Publication of details of Nixon's tax returns by the Providence, R.I., Journal-Bulletin last Oct. 3 was a key development in the controversy over the President's income taxes.

The newspapers, quoting what they said were documents provided by government sources, reported that Nixon had paid a total of $1,670 in federal income taxes in 1970 and 1971 and received refunds totalling $131,503 for the two years.

The White House said originally that the IRS audited Nixon's tax returns for those two years and ordered no change, but the Internal Revenue announced earlier this month that it is reopening the case.

'Dead' Draft Evader Now Alive

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — Steven Wayne Trimm, a convicted draft evader who lived underground in Canada for four years while his family believed him dead, has surfaced in Hamilton and hopes to become a legal immigrant.

Trimm, who has recently been working part time as a teacher at a free school and writing a book about his last four years, said Wednesday he applied last fall to become a landed immigrant under the governments' 90-day easing of immigration requirements.

"It seemed the offer was made in good faith," Trimm said. "I thought if I told the Immigration Department my story there was a chance I'd be accepted. I was tired of living in fear."

Trimm, who is now midway through the immigration process and awaiting a decision, said he decided to contact his parents in Chatham, N.Y., shortly after he went to the Immigration Board.

When the now 25-year old Trimm disappeared in 1969, his father said he believed his son had committed suicide by walking into the ocean off Rhode Island shortly after losing an appeal of his conviction for draft evasion.

The father said he was shown an "apparent suicide note" and some of his son's personal effects.

Trimm said he had not contacted his parents then to tell them he was alive because his family had put up their house in lieu of $5,000 bail. "I thought if I could confuse the legal issues enough, maybe the authorities would not be legally able to move against my parents and the house. The suicide business was just to fuzz up the trail," he said.

"They didn't actually seize the house," he added. "I don't know why."

Trimm said he first wrote his parents a letter last fall to prepare them for the shock of his still being alive. He phoned them shortly afterwards.

He said their reaction was "a combination of many things. First they were stunned, then delighted, then afraid that the immigration offer was a trap and I'd be arrested.

"At first, when I turned 18 and registered (for the draft) I applied to be a conscientious objector. They weren't too pleased about that. Then I didn't get objector status so I had to become a killer or resist. So I resisted and—at that time—they were very upset.

"But these last four years with Watergate among other things, maybe they've come to think I wasn't so wrong as I appeared to be in '68 or '69."

Trimm said his family, which also includes a younger brother, was reunited last Christmas in Hamilton.

Three Killings Under Probe, Robbery Is Apparent Motive

SOUTH GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (UPI)—State police were probing the deaths of three men who were shot during an apparent robbery at a tavern in the nearby town of Moreau, state police said Wednesday.

State police said all three victims were found in a pool of blood in front of the bar in the Cabaret Lounge, along Route 9.

All three had been shot in the head, said Capt. John B. Sullivan at a hastily called news conference. He said there was evidence of a robbery and that "some money" appeared to be missing. He would not elaborate.

The dead were identified as John J. Canale, 23, of Glens Falls, a bartender and son of the tavern owner; Andrew P. Gilisco, 39, of the Albany County city of Watervliet; and Michael Russo, about 25, of the Albany suburb of Latham.

Canale and Gilisco were found dead in the tavern. Russo died Wednesday afternoon at Ellis Hospital in Schenectady.

Earlier Canale had been listed as from South Glens Falls; Gilisco as Alex Gilisco of Albany, and Russo as a Troy resident.

They said the shooting was discovered at mid-morning when Carman Canale, the owner of the establishment, arrived at the business. He went to a side door, found it unlocked, rushed in, and found the bodies on the floor.

John Canale lived at 15 Charlotte St. and Gilisco lived at 20 19th St. There was no address listed for Russo.

84 Days in Space Nearly Assured

HOUSTON (UPI) — Space officials still think the final Skylab mission will last 84 days in spite of minor problems with a pesky control mechanism.

Program officials hold their weekly meeting today to perform what has become a formality—approval of seven more days in space for astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue.

"I don't see any reasons we'd have any trouble making that decision to go (84 days)," Flight Director Milton Windler said Wednesday.

The only consistently erratic parts of the complex, 100-ton, 113-foot long spaceship have been the gyroscopes, which engineers said have slowed down at least three and possibly four times already this week.

One of the slowdowns, which occur in the devices' spinning wheels, was on gyro No. 3 and was the first time that gyro displayed any erratic performance. Gyro No. 2 has been acting up off and on since early in the mission, when the first gyro conked out completely.

Engineers, admittedly at a loss to really explain all the slowdowns, said what appeared to be the third slowdown of the week on gyro No. 2 may have only been a faulty signal from the spacecraft to the ground.

Windler said, however, that the crew could still limp along for the rest of the record-setting 12-week space journey even if one of those gyros failed within the next few days.

Although no maneuvering of the ship to photograph the Earth or Comet Kohoutek would be allowed, there would be enough thrusting gas from the lab itself and from the crew's Apollo ferry ship to stay in orbit safely, he said.

The primary purpose of the crew staying on would be to gather medical data on men living longer than ever before in zero gravity.

Health Costs Controls May Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council Wednesday issued its final Phase 4 regulations on health costs that allow doctors and dentists a 4 per cent annual increase in fees in charges.

Council Director John T. Dunlop raised the possibility that some of the controls over health costs may continue after the present wage-price control authority expires at the end of April.

"It is my personal view that it will be important to continue a statutory base for restraint of health costs after April 30," he said.

The major provisions of the regulations issued Wednesday include:

—Hospital charges for inpatient treatment are limited to a 7.5 per cent annual increase, with other adjustments allowed for changes in the number of patients.

—Hospital outpatient charges are limited to a 6 per cent increase.

—Doctors, dentists and other medical practitioners are limited to a 4 per cent increase in over-all fees and a 10 per cent limit on increases for individual fees over $10 and a $1 increase on fees under $10.

—Long-term care institutions, including nursing homes, are limited to a 6.5 per cent increase in average revenue.

Cleaning Them Up

Dutto's legions have once again spread out through Ulster County issuing a new monthly health rating for area restaurants. This drive for good food standards by Health Commissioner Bartholomew Dutto and his dedicated 'sanitarians' is good news for the well-being and good health of Hudson Valley epicureans.

And, it is well to stress that most of the restaurateurs who had their establishments cited for poor sanitary conditions were quick to correct any violations found on their premises. Commissioner Dutto, in one case, had to lean quite heavily on one restaurant located in the southern portion of Ulster, but the owner finally saw the light and brought his eating place up to acceptable standards.

The conscientious efforts of Commissioner Dutto and his staff in living up to the obligations of their agency is an example of local government that does give a damn.

Court Ruling Applauded

The United States Supreme Court, by a 6 to 3 vote, has determined that grand juries may use illegally obtained evidence as a basis for questioning witnesses without violating their constitutional rights.

To many Americans, the phrase "illegally obtained evidence" may have an ominous sound.

Yet further study suggests that the court acted properly and that the ruling in fact will enhance rather than detract from constitutional rights.

The question of so-called illegal evidence always has puzzled laymen.

Only recently the court ruled that a policeman stopping a car for a minor infraction could hold the driver if he observed items which indicated a violation of a more serious nature, such as burglar tools in the back seat. Up until that decision, a law officer almost had to have ESP in order to effect the arrest.

The newest verdict by the court is a logical follow-up.

It is a significant exception to the principle that courts will not admit in criminal trial evidence that the prosecution obtained without a warrant or by some other illegal method.

Thus the Supreme Court majority has strengthened the powers of the grand jury and in so doing has given all of us a greater measure of security. But the court was careful to point out that a defendant's rights at a formal trial have not been lessened.

The apparent effect of the ruling will be to permit indictment of a suspect on the basis of evidence that still would not be admissible to prove his guilt at a trial.

A grand jury's function strictly is to consider evidence that would justify an indictment that later would lead to a trial. The court agreed that illegally seized evidence would be suppressed if a defendant went to trial.

Justice Lewis Powell, speaking for the majority, noted that a grand jury generally is unrestrained by the technical, procedural and evidentiary rules governing the conduct of criminal trials. He felt that to do otherwise would only serve to delay and disrupt grand jury proceedings.

The specific case on which the court made its verdict is an excellent illustration of what it's all about.

In 1970 federal agents, armed with a valid warrant, had searched a Cleveland company in connection with an investigation of illegal gambling. The agents found no evidence of gambling. They did find what appeared to be a record of loan-sharking.

The following year a new grand jury, using the records seized in the 1970 raid, sought to question the head of the Cleveland firm about loan-sharking. He fought the case, contending the evidence had been illegally obtained.

The case went all the way to the high court, which ruled against the man. Previously he would have gone free. Now he faces the prospect of indictment and trial.

There is absolutely nothing wrong with this procedure. Lawmen especially will applaud the ruling. It will make their work a lot easier and it will help restore faith that ultimately justice will be served.

ISRAEL'S GROWTH — Letting down the bars of emigration by the Soviet Union helped the Israel population grow by 200,000 in 1973 to 3,350,000. Emigration from the Soviet may not have been all that Israel and her people wanted, but the result was substantial.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

'Spy' Ring for the Joint Chiefs

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Perhaps we can shed more light on how Henry Kissinger and his military aides wound up spying on one another.

It grew out of the frustrations of the Joint Chiefs of Staff over President Nixon's obsessive secrecy. They were often kept in the dark about world moves which affected the armed forces.

To keep better informed, Adm. Thomas Moorer, the JCS chairman, set up his own pipeline into the White House. He received photocopies of documents that had been filched right out of Kissinger's secret files.

These were delivered by the Joint Chiefs' liaison officer at the White House, Rear Adm. Robert O. Welander, to Moorer's executive assistant, Capt. Arthur K. Knoizen, who presumably turned them over to Moorer.

'SECRET-SENSITIVE'

Knoizen also circulated some of the documents to the other military chiefs. Nothing appeared in writing to indicate the documents had been copied from Kissinger's files. But sometimes Knoizen sent a cover memo warning of the "sensitivity" of the material.

Another Navy officer, Capt. Howard N. Kay, represented the Joint Chiefs at meetings of Kissinger's hush-hush Washington Special Action Group. Afterward, Jay submitted reports of the meetings, stamped "Secret-Sensitive," to Knoizen.

Separate sets of minutes, intended for the Pentagon's official use, were signed jointly by G. Warren Nutter, then an assistant defense secretary, and James H. Noyes, a deputy assistant secretary. But unknown to the civilian leaders, Kay's more detailed minutes were routed out-of-channel directly to the Joint Chiefs.

LAUNCHED PROBE

In December 1972, we quoted from secret documents to prove that Nixon and Kissinger had lied to the American people about the U.S. role in the India-Pakistan conflict. This led to an intensive search for our sources by the President's undercover "plumbers."

The investigation, directed by former Kissinger aide David R. Young Jr., utilized wiretaps, lie detectors and other quasi-legal tactics. But instead of uncovering our sources, the "plumbers" stumbled upon the Pentagon spy ring.

FOOTNOTE: Captain Knoizen told us there had been absolutely nothing surreptitious nor sinister about the documents he received from the White House and circulated to the Joint Chiefs. Captain Kay acknowledged that he had written memos for the Joint Chiefs summarizing Kissinger's meetings. He insisted this was perfectly proper since he had been the "action officer" for the Joint Chiefs. Neither Welander nor Kissinger could be reached for comment, although Kissinger told us earlier he had no knowledge of Young's activities after he joined the "plumbers."

AUTOS AND ANTITRUST: Senate trustbusters are readying plans to strip General Motors, Ford and, to a lesser extent, Chrysler of their subsidiaries. The groundwork will be laid at public hearings next month.

Chopping down the motor monsters to a more competitive size, the trustbusters believe, would have saved the automobile industry from the economic impact of the fuel crisis.

Now, dealers are stuck with 100-day backlogs of unsold gas guzzlers. This has forced the manufacturers to shut down production lines, idling almost 100,000 auto workers.

General Motors, with only a quarter of its production in small cars, anticipates a sales drop of eight to 12 per cent this year. Ford and Chrysler are desperately trying to turn 50 per cent of their production to smaller, gas-saving cars.

FEBRUARY HEARINGS

This will be explored in open testimony next month by Sen. Phil Hart's antitrust subcommittee. The committee's secret study indicates that if more smaller companies like American Motors manufactured cars, parts and accessories, the abrupt shift from big to small cars would be far less painful.

Hart, a Democrat from the motor state of Michigan, will chair the hearings. But the background for the first week-long session will come largely from a young lawyer, Bradford Snell, who for months has been working 12-hour days on a strategy for breaking up the auto giants without harming the economy.

Hart's plan is not to split General Motors into independent companies for Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Buicks and Cadillacs, respectively, or to break up Ford into separate Ford, Mercury and Lincoln companies.

Instead, he believes the enormous economic power of the "Big Two" can be curbed simply by requiring them to give up their dealerships, their parts and accessories subsidiaries, their truck divisions and financing and insurance interests.

ELABORATE PLAN

Snell has worked out an elaborate divestment plan, which is now locked up in the subcommittee's safe.

For the February hearings, Hart plans to call in experts from the federal government, business world and academic community to present their ideas for improving competition in the auto industry and avoiding such economic catastrophes as the fuel crisis has brought on.

Later, the auto moguls will be invited to present their views at another round of hearings.

FOOTNOTE: After he is through with the auto industry, Senator Hart will hold hearings on how to split up the steel and energy industries. Then he will tackle the communications giant, American Telephone and Telegraph.

"We Could Always Lighten the Boat a Bit More!"

On the Right

The Four Nixons

By WILLIAM BUCKLEY JR.

I propose, on completion of these words, to march them over to a printer, shrink them to penny-postcard size, and, wordlessly, to hand them out to elevator men, Hollywood stars, and corporation presidents who ask me, as everyone is asked these days, the one question: "Mr. Buckley, do you think Nixon will resign?"

If there were time, I would answer roughly as follows . . .

There are several Nixons. The first Nixon is the one that comes most readily to mind. About him the cliche is: he will never quit. It is uncharacteristic of him. He is a determined, stubborn man, who fought most of his adult life to be President of the Unite States. He likes being President. He likes the power of the Presidency, the usufructs of the Presidency, and the romance of the Presidency. You won't drive that man out of the White House until the limousine pulls up to the door on Inauguration Day, 1977.

That is Nixon One. Nixon Two is the political realist. He is the man who can cooly survey the political situation and draw the necessary conclusions, when there are necessary conclusions. It was that Nixon who, having expended himself at the Governor's Conference in Cleveland in 1964 trying to organize a Stop-Goldwater movement, recognized it wouldn't work. Then, unlike the hapless William Scranton who went on to try to stop Goldwater and ended by looking like Harold Stassen, Nixon Two drew back, recognized Goldwater wasn't going to make it, and — supported Goldwater lustily. That single decision brought him the Republican nomination in 1968. Otherwise it would have gone to — Reagan; yes, Reagan. And Nixon knew that. This Nixon, the political realist, is capable of judging whether there is going to be impeachment plus conviction, and of either a) acting to try to abort the case against him by hard political maneuvering; or b) accepting the inevitable and resigning. He has not at this moment concluded that the political reality is that he will be deposed.

There is Nixon Three. Nixon Three is a withdrawn, moody, introspective man who revels in a pain that is often self-inflicted. It is a Nixon who works even harder than necessary to get the good grade, or to qualify for the football team, or memorize the name of the ward leader. It is the Nixon who will make himself stay up all night before deciding on a Vice-Presidential running mate, not so much because he is thereby better equipped to pick the right man, but because he likes to be able to say, "I stayed up all night worrying about this one."

It is the Nixon who blurts out in the prepared speech that he will continue to work "sixteen to twenty hours a day, seven days a week," for his country. The Nixon who feels that all the proper people in the east resent him because he did not go to an Ivy League college and that therefore he will hew to the rotarian company with which he feels comfortable.

This Nixon feels that he is fated to suffer, must suffer; that suffering is good and that strength comes through adversity. This is the Nixon whose mind begins now to turn to the ultimate suffering: resignation. If, for the man on the make, power is an aphrodisiac, for the man facing the end, martyrdom is orgasmic. There is no other explanation for the smile on the face of St. Stephen as the archers bent their bows.

And then, if you can stand it, there is Nixon Four. This is Nixon the human being. This week's New York Times Sunday Magazine has a million-page rehearsal of the entire Watergate business. One's eyes fasten on a single sentence. "He (Nixon) even deducted $1.24 in finance charges from Garfinckel's Department Store." Nixon Four could prevail over Nixon One for reasons entirely human. Shylock spoke for the Jewish race: He might as well have spoken for Nixon when he said "hath not a Jew eyes? Hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? Fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer, as the Christian is? If you prick us do we not bleed? If you tickle us, do we not laugh? If you poison us, do we not die?"

And — the final line — "and if you wrong us, shall we not revenge?"

Nixon Four is visible walking the sands of San Clemente and riding economy class in the little jet and answering questions about did he deduct $1.24 for finance charged from Garfinckel's. When Nixon Four and Nixon Three, espying a joint opportunity, fuse their vision, then Nixon will resign, not only with honor, but with pleasure.

Washington Calling

Nelson's Legacy Will Hurt Him

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — By running for President for the third, or maybe it's the fourth, time Nelson Rockefeller is enlivening a dreary political scene. He finds himself the target of the professional rightists and the professional leftists, each side smiting him for their own reasons.

For the right, he is a big spender and a high taxer. He may claim to have cleaned up New York State's rivers and to have put through other major reforms during his four terms as governor, but he did it with the peoples' money and they would have been better off spending their own money. So goes the refrain on the conservative side.

The professional leftists slam Rockefeller as the archetype of the establishment. He is the sign and symbol of Eastern seaboard wealth and quondam power. They ridicule his Commission on Critical Choices, caricaturing it as a sleazy device to escape exposing his own positions on critical issues. Granted that that caricature is not too hard to arrive at.

Let me state my own position. Of all the visible and half-visible candidates for 1976, Rockefeller is by both domestic and foreign experience the best equipped. He has proved himself as an administrator and, beginning with his experience in World War II as coordinator for Latin-American affairs, he has demonstrated his understanding of the currents of foreign policy.

His handicap, in my opinion, is his identification with big oil and oil is likely to be the leading issue of the campaign this fall and in 1976 as well. Gasoline prices, gasoline shortages, the shortfall of heating oil with cold homes, this adds up to deep discontent and a profound distrust of the five or six major oil companies.

Nelson's grandfather, the first John D., put together Standard Oil, the cartel colossus, that fixed production, prices and distribution. It was the basis of the huge Rockefeller fortune that has poliferated down through three generations.

As proof of how tight the hold still is, a recent prediction by economist Walter W. Heller, who was Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors in the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations, puts the rise in the profits of the oil company majors at $24 billion in 1974 over 1973. This is based on the assumption of a 50 per cent rise in retail prices of petroleum products over the levels of last summer. That is an educated guess.

If Congress gets off the dime and enacts the "windfall profits" tax, Heller estimates that about $8 million of this gain will be paid to foreign governments and $3 billion to the United States Treasury. This would leave a net after-tax profit of $13 billion. Outside the oil industry, profits, according to Heller, are expected to decline by 8 to 10 per cent compared to 1973 levels.

To tag Nelson with the rapacity and the power to crush all competitors of his grandfather may seem unjust. But the legacy of that era when Ida Tarbell and the other muckrakers exposed the price fixing and the rigging of markets and rail rates cannot be simply sloughed off.

A spokesman for the Rockefeller family says the present generation has a comparatively small holding in the oil companies put together by the founding father. But comparatively small for a Rockefeller would be an awful lot for an ordinary citizen.

If he is a serious candidate, Rockefeller, in my opinion, has only one choice. That is to dissociate himself from big oil. He can do this by declaring for the excess-profits tax on the huge increment that will come to the majors as the result of swiftly rising prices for gas and heating oil.

The field of 1976 is narrowing. Spiro Agnew, who as Vice President was considered virtually the No. 1 prospect, sank without a trace in the mire of Maryland's corruption. And whatever happened to the big Texan, John Connally? He rated high when it appeared possible that the President would name him to the vacant office of Vice President.

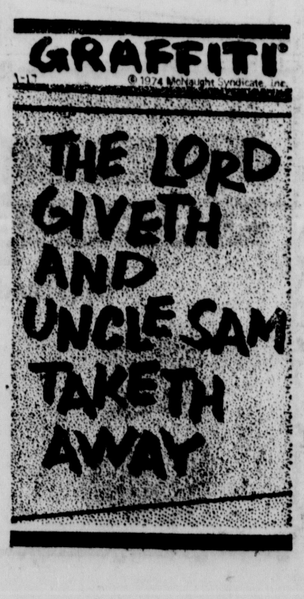

The man in the catbird's seat is Gerald R. Ford. So long as he keeps his counsel, looks strong and honest, he has the best chance of all. While not the helmsman, as the loyal first mate he is ready to take the wheel at a moment's notice and the hopes of outsiders would correspondingly diminish.

Three Are Charged in Auto Case

TOWN OF PLATTEKILL

Two youths and a 22-year-old Marlboro man were charged with possession of stolen property on Wednesday following a high speed chase in an allegedly stolen auto in the Town of Plattekill.

The chase began at about 1:30 p.m. when Trooper John E. Hornbeck of Highland State Police spotted the car which had been reported stolen from Highland on Monday.

The driver of the car, later identified as Dennis LaPolla, 22, attempted to elude the pursuing police car by taking numerous back roads in the Town of Plattekill, autorities said. Other police units were alerted, and road blocks were set up, but before the chase reached a road block, the allegedly stolen car ran off Fosler Road and into a snowbank.

Trooper Hornbeck apprehended a juvenile and a 16-year-old at the scene. Neither were identified. Meanwhile, other troopers caught LaPolla, who had fled the scene in a nearby swamp.

All three were charged with two counts of second degree possession of stolen property after an allegedly stolen rifle was found in the car. Troopers said the rifle had been taken from a parked auto in Modena.

LaPolla was additionally charged with unlawful imprisonment on a warrant from the Town of New Paltz. The charge was made in connection with an alleged incident in early December involving a 16-year-old girl.

The juvenile was released in the custody of his parents pending family court action. LaPolla and the 16-year-old were confined in Ulster County Jail following arraignment pending further court proceedings.

Son Finds Father's Body In Automobile

ELLENVILLE

A 15-year-old Ellenville boy returned home from school Wednesday afternoon and found his father dead in a car parked in his garage.

Ellenville Village Police said the body of Ronald F. Willard, believed to be 42, of 2 Helen Street, was discovered by his son, Craig, at about 3:15 p.m.

Willard was found in the front seat of his car, wearing a seat belt. The car was running, and a vacuum cleaner hose had been connected to the tail pipe of the car and extended into the interior of the vehicle.

Willard, the owner of Willard's Flowers, 119 Canal Street, Ellenville, had reportedly been under a doctor's care, according to authorities.

Police said it is believed Willard was in the parked car for about three hours before his body was discovered by his son, who contacted police and asked for an ambulance.

An autopsy will be conducted to determine cause of death.

Fresh Fruits, Vegetables . . . Supply Down

NEW YORK (UPI)—Grocery shoppers in the metropolitan area may have trouble finding fresh fruits and vegetables today as a wildcat strike by some 1,300 warehousemen against the massive Hunts Point Terminal produce market enters its second day.

The walkout, by members of Local 202, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, began early Wednesday because of rank-and-file dissatisfaction with a recent contract worked out by the local president, Charles Ullrich.

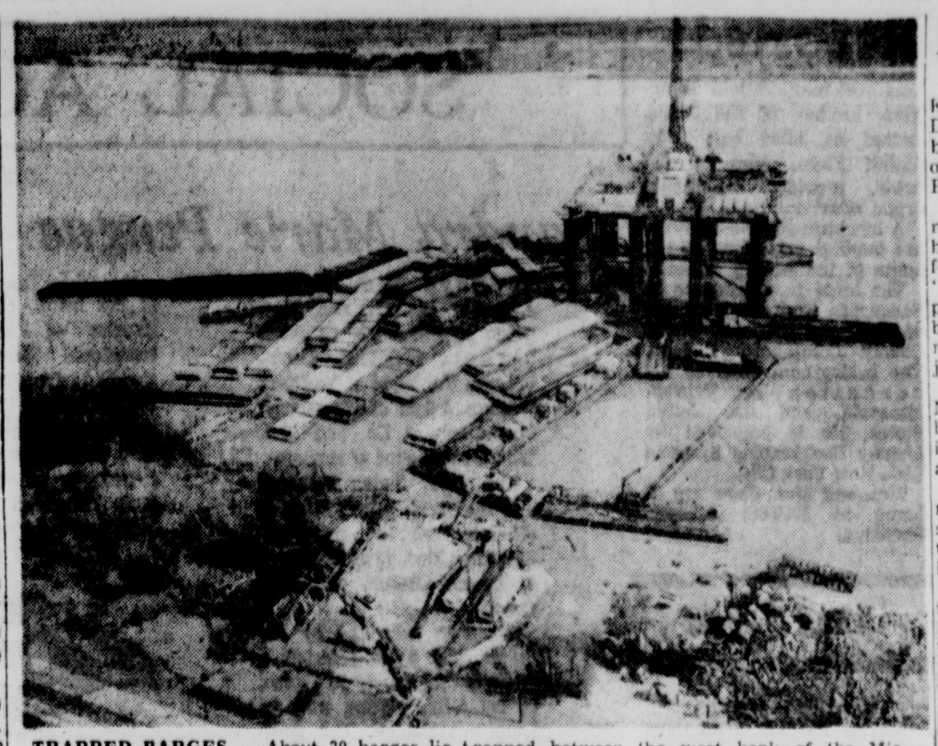

The new contract called for a 5.25 per cent wage increase, in addition to cost-of-living raises and more pension and welfare benefits than the previous contract, under which the men are paid $163.50 weekly.

Most union members said they wanted a 5.5 per cent increase with a larger cost-of-living increase.

Ullrich, who was taken by surprise by the wildcat strike, said he would continue negotiating with management for a better contract.

Meanwhile, fruits and vegetables remained inside refrigerated trucks, and one driver said the produce would stay fresh in the trucks for about 48 hours.

The Hunts Point market supplies approximately $2 million worth of fresh fruit and vegetables to some 15 million customers in the metropolitan area daily.

TRAPPED BARGES — About 30 barges lie trapped between the west bank of the Mississippi River, around Belle Chasse, and an offshore platform, waiting to be moved out into the Gulf of Mexico. During the night, while there was a heavy fog, about 130 barges broke loose from their moorings above the Crescent City and drifted through the port of New Orleans, colliding with ships and wharves. Damage was light. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Manslaughter Testimony Continues

KINGSTON

The first degree manslaughter trial of Linda May Tubby, 31, who is accused of shooting her father with his own gun as he slept at their home at 219 Delaware Avenue last July 1, continued today in County Court with the calling of two witnesses by the prosecution.

City Judge Hubert A. Richter, who served as the Tubby's attorney for several years, was the first witness called today, as the trial entered its third day. Judge Richter testified concerning a conversation with Mrs. Myrtle Tubby, Linda's mother, shortly after the shooting, when she called him to ask for assistance.

Mrs. Tubby was the first witness called in the trial. She completed her testimony on court that Linda came down the stairs and said, "Mommy, I just killed Daddy."

The second witness called by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt today was Carl Peters, Miss Tubby's fiance, who testified he had decided to begin breaking off their relationship prior to the shooting.

Both witnesses were cross examined by defense attorney John Gotelli. County Judge Raymond J. Mino is presiding.

Tricia Terms Separation As 'Nonsense'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tricia Nixon Cox has labeled as lies rumors that she and her husband Edward Cox are separating.

The rumors began circulating after Cox, a New York City lawyer, did not accompany the Nixons on a post-Christmas holiday in San Clemente, Calif.

The Coxes, who live in New York City, spent Christmas Day with the Nixon family at the White House. However, on Christmas night Cox returned to New York.

Tricia flew with her parents to San Clemente, staying there until last weekend. She returned to New York from Washington on Tuesday.

Ehrlichman's Ex-Aide Has Top Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kenneth R. Cole Jr., once John D. Ehrlichman's assistant, has been promoted to Ehrlichmans' old job, assistant to the President for domestic affairs.

The White House announcement Wednesday said Nixon had directed the 35-year-old former advertising executive "to work closely with the vice president" and cabinet members in developing and implementing domestic policy. The job pays $42,500 per year.

Before the announcement Nixon and Cole met for an hour, discussing the forthcoming State of the Union address and new legislative programs.

Cole's promotion had been rumored for some time. He had served as executive director of the Domestic Council, a cabinet level policy group, since early in Nixon's second term. After the departure of Ehrlichman last April in the wake of the Watergate scandal, Nixon brought former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird out of retirement to serve as a counselor to the President on domestic problems with special responsibility for relations with Congress.

Cole's responsibility expanded under Laird, and with Laird's announced departure Feb. 1, Cole was promoted to the top position.

He is a native of New York City and a graduate of Bucknell University. He served as an executive in the advertising firm of J. Walter Thompson before joining Nixon's campaign in 1968.

Judge Dismisses Request For Citation Against IBM

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge A. Sherman Christensen has dismissed a requested contempt citation against International Business Machines Corp., ruling the firm had not violated his orders.

The Telex Corp. had filed the request. The Tulsa firm contended IBM officials would not supply requested information about connections between computer components.

At the end of a nine-hour hearing Tuesday, Christensen upheld IBM's contention that the information sought by Telex was about computer design, not connection information.

Telex sought the contempt order after IBM-Telex suits last year in which IBM was found guilty of monopolistic practices in the computer accesory field and Telex of industrial espionage.

Christensen also indicated he would modify a protective order on a census of the computer industry taken in 1971 at the direction of a Minnesota federal court. The census of about 2,000 firms connected with the computer industry was used in the long trial last year.

Christensen said the census was now a part of the trial record before the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals, which is considering appeals from the earlier trial.

In the earlier trial, Telex was given a $259 million judgment against IBM while IBM received a judgment of $21.9 million in its suit against Telex.

Mrs. John Duddie Jr., sister of the bride, Stratford, was matron of honor in a traditional Hawaiian A-line wedding gown of white and silver knit. She wore a matching headpiece trimmed with white rabbit and carried a nosegay of red roses and holly accented with silver balls and baby's breath.

Miss Elizabeth Askue of Hurley, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Michael MacDonald of Waterbury, Conn., served as attendants. Their gowns, headpieces and bouquets were identical to the honor attendant's.

Capt. James Horkovich of Shalimar, Fla. was best man. Ushering were Richard Woehlke of Allentown, Pa., and Orten Pengue Jr., Stratford, Conn., brother of the bride.

The wedding took place Saturday, Dec. 22 in Kripplebush United Methodist Church. The Rev. John Capen officiated at the single ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a colonial white gunny sack gown styled with matching colonial lace sleeves with pearl buttons, a fitted bodice with a U-neckline, and an A-line skirt with three rows of lace. She wore a headpiece of white bridal rosebuds and baby's breath and carried a bouquet of white bridal roses, carnations and baby's breath.

Maid of honor, Miss Irene Hough of Kripplebush, stepsister of the bridegroom, wore an A-line gown of nile green crepe with a matching headpiece and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations, daisies, and baby's breath.

Lincoln Day Dinner Chairmen Named

Mrs. William Krum, chairman of the Lincoln Day Dinner sponsored by Ulster County Federation, Women's Republican Clubs, which will be held at Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday, Feb. 12, reports that enthusiasm is running high among members to make this event a huge success. Chairman Krum and her co-chairmen, Mrs. Robert Davidson and Mrs. Marguerite Derringer, announce that all committee chairmen have been appointed. Miss Marjorie Quilty, co-chairman for the Lincoln Day Dinner in 1973, will be chairman of reservations; Mrs. Rita Senor, second vice president of the Ulster County Federation, Women's Republican Clubs, has been appointed ticket chairman. Her committee is comprised of Mrs. Lillian Brandt, first vice president, and Mrs. Vincent Carputo, Women's Club treasurer.

Women from all areas of the county are being asked to solicit tickets in their areas. Ticket Chairman Rita Senor also asks members of the Club to stimulate interest for the Lincoln Day Dinner in order to guarantee a large attendance.

Mrs. Richard Nace, fourth vice president, is chairman in charge of hostesses. She reports that hostesses will be contacted to represent the Republican women from different townships. The decorations are being chaired by Mrs. James Rapp, third vice president, and Mrs. Edwin Callahan. They are already assembling unique centerpieces for the event.

Miss Evelyn Dolson, a member of the executive committee, will handle the arrangements for the dais, and Mrs. William D. Brinnier, vice chairman of the Ulster County Republican Committee, has been appointed publicity chairman.

The Lincoln Day dinner will be the first county-wide project for the Women's Club in 1974. This gala event is open to all interested Republicans and the women promise to make it an enjoyable and stimulating evening.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
© 1974, Emily Post Institute, Inc.

The question of giving money as a gift comes up time and again, both from the point of view of those who wish to give it and from those who wish—or do NOT wish—to receive it. For the latter, those people who are embarrassed by gifts of cash, this letter provides a most satisfactory solution.

Dear Mrs. Post: You recently wrote about invitations to anniversary parties where the hosts requested that no gifts be brought. I agree completely with your response, but I have one addition. Should money be given in spite of the request (often an embarrassing gift even from close friends), I suggest this be donated to a favorite charity or to one's church in the name of the original donor. This, I believe, would be entirely appropriate provided the friend was informed in advance. This could apply equally to gifts of money to bereaved families. A gracious acknowledgement and a comment such as, "John would have been so pleased to know that because of your generosity, we could make a donation to the Cancer Society," should suffice.

Mrs. Hartswood

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: I was surprised at your answer concerning business cards, which appeared in a recent column.

I was raised on the theory that business cards (as opposed to social cards) do not say Mrs., Miss or Mr. I don't know any man whose card says Mr. So-and-so, and my business cards have always carried just my name. What do yours say?

Ann Dawson

* * *

Dear Miss Dawson: Although men do not use "Mr." on their business cards, women's names are preceded by "Mrs.," "Miss," or, for those who prefer it, "Ms." A married woman may use either her husband's name or her own first name—whichever is most appropriate to her professional position. My business cards read "Mrs. Elizabeth Post."

For suggestions about to whom, when, how and what to give, you will find my booklet "Gifts and Giving" most helpful. To get a copy, send thirty-five cents in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

Despite the frustration of driving 50 miles per hour (when you're used to going 70), computer tests conducted in Detroit have definitely proven that slowing down on the highway will save gasoline (approximately four miles worth for every gallon you buy).

There's no need to limit your fuel-stretching efforts to just a reduction in driving speed, however. According to the Maine Petroleum Association, a simple engine tuneup can make your automobile squeeze one more mile from every gallon of gas you feed the vehicle. Want to save another easy mile per gallon? Keep your car's tires inflated right up to the maximum recommended operating pressure. Forget air conditioning and your chariot will run up to two miles farther on every gallon of fuel you give it. Keep the engine's air filter clean and you'll save up to yet another mpg.

Remember, too, that a misfiring spark plug can waste up to two miles per gallon of gasoline and a faulty carburetor choke will consume the equivalent of three miles per gallon of fuel.

Nor should you forget that "jackrabbit" starts both brand you as immature and gobble up twice the gasoline consumed by drivers who pull away from the curb in a more leisurely fashion.

Tired of rising fuel oil prices and shortages? You can recycle used auto motor oil into heat for your home, shop or garage, if you know how. To learn, send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS, in care of this paper. Ask for Reprint No. 163, CHEAP HEAT.

Look Here Mrs. Homemaker

NOT TOO EARLY!

Are you looking for some sources of free information on camping, hiking, backpacking, and some other outdoor recreation for this spring and summer — collect your data now says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. The best place to start, of course, is your local public library. Some travel and automobile clubs publish regional camp guides for the United States and Canada. Gasoline companies, state police, and highway commissions also provide free information to motorists.

What if you are planning a trip across the border? Before you go, contact the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, 150 Kent Street, Ottawa 4, Ontario, Canada. If you are heading south of the border, write to the Mexican Tourist Department, 210 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60601.

You can write to the Parks Department of any state for information on camping in that particular state. These departments are usually located in the state capitals. If you have a specific question about the national parks, write to the National Park Service, Office of Information, U.S. Department of the Interior, Washington D.C. 20240.

When you know exactly what areas you plan to visit, write ahead to the local Chambers of Commerce for descriptions of places of scenic or historic interest, tours, and local lodging and campsites.

Are you aware that there are more than 55 million acres of private forest lands in this country open to the public for recreational purposes? Not many people are. As a result, the facilities are usually not as crowded as public lands. For information about forest sites owned by private industry, write the American Forest Institute, 1619 Massachusetts Avenue N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

With the impending gasoline shortage, the Government is encouraging vacationers to stick closer to home this summer. That needn't cramp your style at all. New York State offers some of the most outstanding recreational opportunities in the country. Brochures, maps, and other information on backpack camping on state-owned land is available free from the Bureau of Forest Recreation, New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, Albany. Find out all the exciting places to visit in New York State in the beautiful full-color "1973 Vacationlands" book or the 1974 version may be out soon. It is available from the Department of Commerce, Neal L. Moylan Commissioner, 99 Washington Ave., Albany, New York 12210.

Five free publications of the USDA well-worth writing for are:

— National Parks and National Forests 1965. TITLE — National Forest Vacations. 1968. FS-45

— Wilderness. The National Forests . . . America's Playgrounds. 1967. PA 459

— Camping. The National Forests . . . America's Playgrounds. 1970. PA 502

— Backpacking in the National Forest Wilderness . . . a family adventure. 1971. PA 585

To order these bulletins, send your name and address (including zip code) to the Publications Division, Office of Information, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

If you are hungry for still more information, the July 1972 issue of Consumer Bulletin (available at your library) includes a list of recommended campground guides.

Earl Johnston Is Guest Caller for Dance

EARL JOHNSTON

Lefooters Western Square Dance Club will feature guest caller, Earl Johnston, at the Friday dance at Hurley Reformed Church Hall, off Route 209. The dance is slated for 8 p.m. and all club level dancers are invited.

Earl Johnston of Vernon, Conn. has been calling since 1943. He is a professional square dance caller and calls for eight clubs in the New England area. He teaches beginners for one club and also conducts workshops for three others. Earl Johnston travels regularly throughout the Northeast calling dances and each year he takes a summer tour to Colorado where he conducts a Callers School. He also conducts Callers Schools in Iowa and Virginia. For the past 12 years he has conducted a Callers School in New Hampshire which is considered by many as the outstanding such course in the land. Since 1957 Johnston has recorded on the Grenn Label and has had his share of square dance "hits". He has called at most of the larger square dance conventions and institutes including Asilomar in California and Kirkwood in Missouri.

Lefooters feel this is an exceptional opportunity for square dancers in this area to dance to a caller of Johnston's calibre, and are anticipating that a large number of club level dancers will take advantage of it.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Recently I discovered a faster and much easier way to tackle the job of sanding the sidewalks when they become covered with a coat of ice.

If you have an old grass seed or fertilizer spreader around the house, pour the sand in the hopper. Set it for the smallest hole opening and then just "push" your troubles away.

This way is much faster and eliminates some of those painful backaches!

Charles Sweeney

• • •

Dear Heloise:

Why not save those plastic bags in which the dry cleaner returns your clothes?

I twist them loosely, full length, then wrap the twisted tube around wooden or wire hangers, carefully padding both ends of the hanger.

A small piece of sticky cellophane tape at both ends secures the "padding" to itself and you have a padded hanger suitable for knits and jersey dresses!

Jo Oristaglio

• • •

Dear Heloise:

This is a suggestion for gift giving to a baby. Give washcloths.

Mothers use so many for baby's face, hands and bottoms!

Purchase irregulars on sale, or discontinued lines. They are less expensive than the thick plush ones that are harder to handle on those "little people" areas.

Wash them with baby's laundry and keep them for baby only. This keeps Mother's nice ones nice and — baby doesn't care if they are irregular!

Bugged by Cereal Pests? Here's Their Identification

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The University of Minnesota's Entomology Department agreed to help your readers identify the insects they found in their cereals. We thought you would be interested in the summary of the kinds of insects found as submitted. Samples came from 33 states:

Saw-toothed grain beetle	80
Merchant grain beetle	39
Cigaret beetle	30
Red flour beetle	25
Miscellaneous cereal pests	10
Drugstore beetle	9
Indian meal moth	2
Insects other than cereal pests	15
	210

Cereal products often become infested right in the home. Only glass and tin containers are insect proof, so any package of cake mix, flour, etc., can be penetrated by insects if left standing long enough.

DAVID M. NOETZEL

DEAR DR. NOETZEL: Thank you for providing my readers with the service. Now, if others are bugged by unidentifiable insects in their cereals, please send the little creatures to your own university.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote in your column that a woman is pregnant for 226 days. Who said so? I carried my baby for 10 months and five days; and there is no doubt about it because I know the exact date my baby was conceived. My husband is in the Navy and it couldn't have possibly been conceived any other time because I saw him only once for an hour, and I didn't see him again until the day before the baby was born.

I don't drink or run around, and there is no way this baby isn't his, so please prin' a retraction about that 266 day carrying time because otherwise I am in a lot of trouble.

SAN DIEGO READER

DEAR READER: The average gestation period is 266 days. Some babies come early. Others come late. Yours was late.

DEAR ABBY: I have a kind of strange problem. My parents are divorced, and I live alone with my father. His name is Charles, and my name is Katherine, so I sent out Christmas cards signed "Kathy and Charles Smith."

My mom was very upset because some of her friends thought thay my dad had gotten remarried. So please tell me how to sign our cards next time so my mom won't be upset. Thank you.

KATHY SMITH

DEAR KATHY: Sign the cards, "Charles Smith, and daughter, Kathy."

DEAR ABBY: With all the "hippies, hoppies, homos, and harlots" you've got writing to you, you could start a new "4-H" club!

Citizens' Advisory Committee Reports to Rhinebeck Board

RHINEBECK — Expanded guidance and gymnasium facilities were among the recommendations made by the Citizens Education Advisory Committee in a report presented to the Rhinebeck Board of Education earlier this week.

The committee was asked several months ago to evaluate and comment upon a report prepared by District Principal Dr. James E. Sailer regarding the physical facilities of the Rhinebeck Central School District. It issued its first report in November; the concluding evaluation was released Monday night.

In the report's latest installment, the citizens committee agreed with Dr. Sailer's assessment that administrative office space in the school district is presently inadequate. But the committee recommended that space in the school not be assigned for departmental purposes unless it is clearly inadequate for educational use. The committee then specifically suggested that the guidance department be given expanded facilities.

The committee also said that it is "seriously concerned about the inadequacy of present gymnasium facilities." The report stated, "It is our opinion that sound intramural and interscholastic physical education and spectator sport programs are integral and essential elements of an educational process and that these activities are seriously hampered by lack of proper physical plant."

Although the committee said that the prospect of a new gymnasium is "attractive," it recommended that expansion of existing facilities be considered, as well.

The committee also suggested improved auditorium facilities.

In other recommendations, the committee proposed that the offices of the Business Administrator and District Principal be placed in close proximity to facilitate a smooth and efficient joint operation."

The committee also recommended establishment of a faculty lounge, which "should have easy access to source of food and drink and should be comfortably furnished."

But the committee would not comment on "the desirability of owned versus leased buses," stating that it does not feel qualified to make "substantive comment" on that issue.

Chairman of the 13-member committee is Charles F. Pickhardt, Jr.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT RETIREES — Two members of the Ulster County Health Department were honored recently at a dinner at Holiday Inn on the occasion of their retirement later this month after many years of service. Certificates were awarded to (L) Ann Weisenberger, senior stenographer presented by Dr. Alfred M. Feldshuh, vice president of the Ulster County Board of Health and to Helen R. Taylor, senior account clerk by County Legislator Brian R. White (R-Dist. 8) new chairman of the Public Health Committee. (Freeman photo by Carey)

Insurance Group Acts On Social Security

KINGSTON — Thomas J. McInerney, agency supervisor of Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. has reported on action taken by the New York State Association of Life Underwriters concerning Social Security.

McInerney reports that a copy of the resolution acted upon by the group has been forwarded to Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.

The resolution, in effect, called for an in-depth review of the Old Age Survivor Insurance program (OASI) by all New York State Congressmen and Senators, adding that "personal politics be laid aside and let mutual efforts assist Congressman Barber Conable of the 35th District and others bring about a halt of amendments to Social Security until a thorough in-depth review has been completed."

The Association, in calling for the in-depth review said:

"The Old Age Survivor insurance program misleads the American public that Social Security is an insurance program and that 11 and seven-tenths per cent tax on a worker's income does not pay for his or her family's security, but goes to pay for the monthly income of the generation ahead of the current worker.

"The $1,544 each year to be paid for each worker earning $1,100 per month threatens Social Security's continuance and that most working married women are never going to benefit from 11.7 per cent of their wages contributed to Social Security because their husband's benefits provide the wife's income in the event of his death, disability or old age.

"Whenever the larger wage earner is the wife, then the husband's 11 7 per cent of his wages does not determine the benefits."

Summarizing, the insurancemen said:

The increases in Social Security benefits by recent special Congressional bills have far over-reached the devaluation of the dollar from inflation, thereby defeating the purpose of the escalation clause put into the law in 1972.

"The present OASI Act," the resolution noted, "projected with a modest annual rate of inflation and salary scale will provide a worker with over $30,000 a year retirement benefits by the year 2000."

Flow Meter Needed For Tivoli Plant

TIVOLI — The Village of Tivoli won't receive its final state aid check for the new sewage treatment plant until it buys and installs a flow meter, it was announced at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.

That information came via letter from the state's Department of Audit and Control. There have been some problems concerning the flow of water into the treatment plant, resulting in an occasional overflow.

It was noted at the meeting that once the flow meter is installed, the village can expect to receive the $8,600 the state still owes for construction of the plant. The cost of the flow meter (which is minimal) will also be covered by the state.

One thing the state won't be paying for, however, is the higher electricity bill that the problem has caused. It was explained that the overflow of water at the treatment plant must be removed by an electric pump . . . at least until the flow meter is operable.

In the meantime, the village is still waiting for some $52,000 from the federal government, representing its final payment to the village for its share of the sewage treatment plant.

In other action, the trustees set Tuesday, March 19 as the date for the annual village elections. The two year terms of trustees William S. Bain and Herbert Meade will expire at that time. Elections will be held at the American Legion Hall from 12 noon to 9 p. m. that day and registration will be held March 2 from 9-5 p. m. at the village firehouse.

Village Clerk Dora Gruntler will conduct a public auction March 15 at 1 p. m. at the firehouse on delinquent tax property in the village. The Village Board also set Feb. 19 as Grievance Day; it will begin at 8 p. m.

Youth Meeting Is Slated

STONE RIDGE — The first annual meeting of the Ulster County Youth Service Committee will be held Tuesday, Jan. 22 at Ulster County Community College in Stone Ridge.

The meeting will include selection of a Board of Directors and adoption of by-laws drawn up by three members of the organization — Ralph Brach of Wallkill, Gabe Kajeckas of Rosendale and Perry Scherz, a member of the Southern Ulster Mental Health Clinic in Ellenville.

The Youth Service Committee was organized several months ago, and is currently working for the establishment of an urban shelter for county youth who are unable to cope with problems encountered living at home. The group intends to apply for state funds to establish a supervised, seven bed residence, preferably in the Kingston area. The shelter would be available to youths between the ages of 14 and 18.

At the latest meeting of the organization, Lou Crepet, chairman of the organizational committee outlined the results of a questionnaire sent to various youth agencies and officials in Ulster County, which indicated support for the group's venture.

In other matters, Al Cukierski, a representative of the New York State Division for Youth, explained procedures necessary for obtaining state funds. Ralph Schneider, chairman for the Division for Youth in Kingston and Horace Sarr of High Falls, an original member of the committee, reviewed the history and goals of the new organization.

ROLISON SCORES FIRST — State Senator Jay P. Rolison (R) former Ulster County representative and now representative of the 39th District which includes Dutchess County, was recently designated to preside over the State Senate now that New York does not have a lieutenant governor. He is shown here with Joseph Cornell, a Senate staff aide, as he performs one of the presiding officer's more important chores — signing 27 bills that the Senate passed Monday. It was the first time in 15 years that a person other than now Gov. Malcolm Wilson exercised the bill-signing function in the Senate.

Hyde Park Man Killed in Truck Crash

HYDE PARK — A 23-year-old Hyde Park man was killed early today when his van-type truck crossed into the oncoming lane on Route 9 and slammed head on into a tractor-trailer.

Robert H. Clark of Hemlock Drive, Hyde Park, was pronounced dead at the scene. His van ran completely under the tractor trailer. Dutchess County Sheriff's deputies said, and was totally demolished.

The driver of the tractor-trailer complained of minor injuries, and was to see his own doctor. He was identified as Robert H. Lopez, 46, of Copake.

Deputies said the tractor-trailer was proceeding south at about 3:57 a.m., when the van, going north, collided with it. An autopsy was scheduled for today to determine the exact cause of Clark's death.

Meanwhile, a 16-year-old Kingston girl received minor injuries in a freak accident on Pearl Street Wednesday afternoon.

Cindy Naccarato of 93 Spring Lake Trailer Park, Kingston, was a passenger in a car driven by David Kaplan, 19, of Fairway Drive, Kingston. Kaplan had pulled over to the curb to let Miss Naccarato out of the car, according to the police report, and as she closed the car door, her coat was allegedly caught. She was thrown to the ground as the car started to pull away from the curb.

Miss Naccarato was treated and released at Benedictine Hospital.

In another city mishap, a Kingston Police car received minor damage when a car driven by Susan Anderson, 17, of 24 O'Neil Street, was in collision with it in a parking lot off Albany Avenue Wednesday afternoon. No injuries were reported and no summonses were issued.

Murder Spree Testimony Continues

HOUSTON (UPI) — A hushed courtroom listened Wednesday as police Sgt. David Mullican described the grisly details of Elmer Wayne Henley's oral and written statements about his part in a three-year sex and torture murder spree.

The detective testified that Henley, his face streaked with tears, told him he wanted to take his punishment for his part in the events that began when he was 14 years old.

The defense wants to strike the testimony from the record, arguing Henley was not competent to waive his constitutional right to silence.

Henley is charged with six of 27 murders. The court is hearing preliminary motions before trying the slender, 17-year-old youth on charges of killing Charles Cobble, 17, of Houston July 27, 1973.

Mullican testified he informed Henley that he did not have to talk to him and that he had a right to be represented by an attorney.

The detective said Henley told him he did not want to be represented by his mother's attorney, Samuel Plotkin.

"He said he wanted to take his punishment, whatever it was," Mullican said. "That he didn't want his mother to be out any expenses."

Mullican was with Henley almost constantly as he and a companion, David Owen Brooks, 18, led officers to three graves in early August that yielded the bodies of the 27 teen-age victims.

"At the point he first told about complicity in the killings," Mullican said, "he cried and was emotional for about the first four to five minutes.

"Tears came to his eyes. He put his hand over his face. Then he told about it. He said he was glad to get it off his chest."

Mullican said Henley began describing his activities and those of Brooks and alleged mastermind Dean Corll, 33, within hours of his arrest after shooting and killing Corll Aug. 8 during a final sex orgy at Corll's Pasadena, Tex., home.

14 Drown, 23 Missing In Channel Tragedy

DOVER, England (AP) — At least 14 persons were drowned, 23 seamen were missing and another 20-man crew were trapped aboard their burning ship today as 100-mile-an-hour winds piled up 50-foot waves in the English Channel.

The 2,447-ton freighter Marta was afire 10 miles off Ostend, Belgium. The coast guard said the huge waves were preventing the 20 crewmen from launching life rafts. Several ships were trying to help.

Helicopters and ships were searching for the 20 crewmen of another Cypriot freighter, the 2,088-ton Prosperity, who took to the lifeboats after the ship's engines broke down 20 miles southwest of Guernsey.

The 781-ton Danish coaster sank off Plymouth in the roughest seas recorded in the Channel in 20 years. Five persons were drowned including the wife of one of the ship's officers, and three were missing; helicopters rescued seven, and a Russian trawler picked up four more.

A 13-year-old English schoolboy was swept away by a wave that crashed over the sea wall at Dawlis, a Devon fishing port. A boy with him survived when the wave swept him back ashore.

Four fishermen were drowned when a wave capsized their boat in Brest harbor. A 16-year-old girl was swept off a ferry near Brest. Two fishermen were washed overboard off Brittany, and a sailor was swept off a Swedish freighter off Cape Frehel.

Four other ships were aground or in trouble.

The storm did considerable damage along England's south coast, ripping off roofs, smashing boardwalks at resorts and tearing loads of metal off trucks.

Michael Burke Speaks Tonight

KINGSTON — Michael Burke, former president of the New York Yankees, and now president of Madison Square Garden Corp., will be the guest speaker tonight at the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County.

The dinner, slated to begin at 7 p.m. at the Gov. Clinton Hotel, will be preceded by a cocktail hour. The dinner program will begin at 8 p.m.

Also featured at the affair will be the installation of Richard B. Mathews as the chamber's 1974 president. He succeeds retiring president David H. Rylance.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices opened higher today, continuing their upward drift of the last two sessions.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up almost a point, while advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange by more than 3 to 1.

This came on the heels of an approximately 16 point gain in the Dow over the previous two sessions, with Wednesday's gain amounting to 9.96. The Dow closed Wednesday at 856.09.

Brokers noted that volume has been light in recent sessions, totalling only 14.93 million shares Wednesday, for example.

Mantle Still Dreams Of Big 'Comeback'

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mickey Mantle retired five years ago, but he still hasn't quit.

Not subconsciously anyway.

He said so Wednesday on an unprecedented occasion, one in which he and his old Yankee buddy, Whitey Ford, became the first two players from the same club ever to be voted into Baseball's Hall of Fame simultaneously.

This isn't the first time Mickey Mantle has bared his soul. He has done it before, but in the 23 years I've known him, I can't ever recall him reaching this far back in the recesses of his psyche.

He talked about how much he misses the competitive part of baseball now that he's out of it.

"I still dream about it almost every night," he said. "I dream that I'm trying to make a comeback."

Later on, he went deeper yet.

"I dream about trying to get back into Yankee Stadium and they won't let me in," he said. "I pull up in a cab and try to get in by crawling through a small hole, but I can't. I see people all around me . . maybe 70,000 . . . and I hear Casey Stengel on the bench, saying, 'Where's Mantle? Where's Mantle?' Then somebody else says 'it's okay, he'll be here soon.' "

Mickey Mantle became only the seventh player to make the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility Wednesday and naturally that pleased him, but not as much perhaps as going in together with his ex-roomie, Whitey Ford.

The two come from entirely differen backgrounds — Mantle from small, rural Commerce, Okla., and Ford from busy, bustling Astoria, Long Island in New York City—but from the first time they met 23 years ago, they hit it off magnificently. They generally could be found together like some kind of entry, 1 and 1-A.

It didn't seem to matter to either that one was country and the other big city.

"I'd say 'over yonder,' " Mickey Mantle laughed at Wednesday's session, "and Whitey would say 'where the hell is over yonder?' But you know he says 'vodkar-r-r and soda.' "

Now both were laughing.

At first, Mantle explained, there were three of them with the Yankees, Billy Martin, Ford and himself.

"I remember the three of us going hunting together down in Commerce after the 1956 season," said Ford. "Mickey's wife, Merlyn, didn't know much about baseball then, and if you recall Mickey won the Triple Crown that year.

"I said to Merlyn, 'What do you think of the year Mickey had?'

" 'Did he do good?' she asked.

"He won the Triple Crown, I said.

" 'What does that mean?' " she said.

Ford then went on to tell how hospitable Mickey's family was to him during his visit.

"Mickey woke me this one morning and said, 'C'mon downstairs. Mom's got breakfast ready.' Well, you know being from New York, I'm used to bacon and eggs. Now I see this quail on the table. Biscuits and breasts of quail on top of it, and home-made gravy on top of that. I didn't think I could ever eat it. But then everybody started eating and I began picking on it. When I finally finished I found out it was great. We had more the next morning. You know, they're such plain, honest people down there, you love 'em."

There is no question about the way Whitey Ford feels about Mickey Mantle and vice versa. That goes personally and professionally.

"I had the greatest respect for Whitey of anybody I ever played with," said Mantle. "We were from different parts of the country and we could make fun of each other's talk, but from the beginning, we just kinda hit it off. I can't ever remember having a cross word with Whitey."

Ford is returning to the Yankees as a coach this year, and Mantle, who represents an insurance company and a bank in Dallas, says he's never had it better. He claims he doesn't care to manage a ball club.

In their day, and there is no real evidence that this one still isn't, the 42-year-old Mantle and 45-year-old Ford had some good times together off the field, so it seemed a bit appropriate that Wednesday's news conference was held in a plush supper club of the Americana Hotel.

Any possible significance the location might have wasn't entirely lost on Mantle either. Asked what it could possibly have been that drew, and then held, him and Ford together, Mickey's blue eyes twinkled a moment.

"I think probably we both like Scotch," he laughed.

O. J. Simpson Named Top Male Athlete

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson admits he's prejudiced when he says, "I think football players are the best athletes."

Named the Male Athlete of the Year for 1973 by The Associated Press, Simpson voiced his thanks, saying:

"This means quite a bit to me obviously since you're considering all the great athletes in all the sports.

"Generally speaking, I think it takes probably more athletic ability to play football and basketball. I would put basketball players in the same mold as football.

"There are so many things involved. I think even from the mental side there is so much involved in football that you just don't have in a baseball game, for instance."

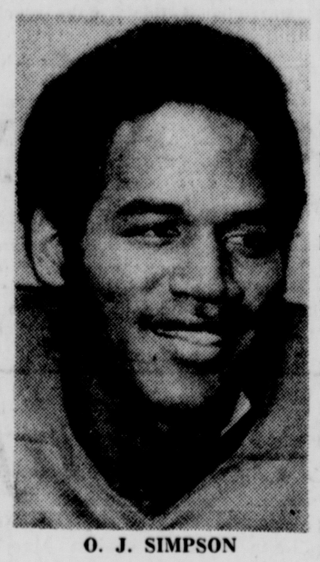

Simpson won the award over a baseball player — Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves who was a distant second in the voting.

Simpson set a National Football League record by rushing for 2,003 yards last season with the Buffalo Bills who finished second to Super Bowl Champion Miami in the American Football Conference East.

He was a unanimous choice for the All-Pro team and was named the NFL Player of the Year. He credits his coach and fellow players for much of his success although he doesn't discount his own value, saying, "I consider myself as good a back as there is in football."

Since the end of the season, he already has signed a long-term contract with Buffalo, has been featured in television shows and works with the American Broadcasting Company as a commentator for televised football games.

In a poll of member newspapers, television stations and radio stations, Simpson received 332 votes. Aaron got 153 votes with UCLA basketball star Bill Walton third at 75.

O. J. SIMPSON

A horse finished sixth, as Secretariat won the highest number of votes ever for a four-legged athlete in this competition.

Golfer Jack Nicklaus was fourth with 34, Pete Rose of Cincinnati's Reds fifth with 22 and Secretariat got 20, three more than baseball's strikeout king, Nolan Ryan of the California Angels.

Simpson won his second NFL rushing title this past season but increased his yardage by 750. He smashed Jim Brown's 10-year-old record of 1,863 and gained more than 200 in three games.

O. J. Shows

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — O. J. Simpson showed up and workouts became serious Wednesday as the National and American Football Conference prepared for Sunday's Pro Bowl at Kansas City.

Simpson, the AFC player of the year, failed to show up when practice began Tuesday and word was that he might honor a statement he made that he would not play unless his Bufialo Bills offensive line unit was invited.

When he arrived, he said he had ironed out his problems, and Buffalo offensive tackle Dave Foley was invited to replace Miami's injured Wayne Moore.

Simpson said he was disappointed that Miami's Larry Csonka would not be able to play in the same backfield because of injuries, especially because "he's a great blocker."

Oakland's Marv Hubbard was named to replace Csonka.

Quarterbacks Bob Griese of Miami and Kenny Stabler of Oakland were expected to rely on running.

Griese said his arm felt tired and that the others might have an advantage because they had an extra week of rest.

"I think the ideal thing would be to play the Pro Bowl the week before the Super Bowl," Griese said. "The culmination, the big point of the season, should be the Super Bowl. To play another game is just anticlimatic."

John Hadl, now with the Los Angeles Rams, wore his old "21" Charger uniform while working out and seemed ready to launch a passing game. He will have Rams' teammate Harold Jackson, who caugnt 13 touchdown passes, while his backup, Roman Gabriel, will be firing to Philadelphia Eagles teammate Harold Carmichael, who led the league in receptions with 67.

The practice site was moved to San Diego Saturday because of inclement weather in Kansas City. Although temperatures have been in the 70s here, the weather has cleared somewhat in the midwest.

Rangers Awakening

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Emile Francis has already noticed an improvement since taking over as New York Rangers coach last week.

"This team's been having trouble scoring on the road," Francis said Wednesday night after the Rangers tied Detroit 4-4. "But we were four goals behind and came back. That should prove something."

In other NHL games, Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 2-0, Chicago tied Boston 5-5, and California also logged a 5-5 tie with Toronto.

In the World Hockey Association, the New England Whalers beat the Jersey Knights 4-2 and Houston beat Toronto 4-1.

Former Red Wing Bruce MacGregor scored with 23 seconds remaining to climax the Ranger comeback.

Penguins 2, Kings 0

Phil Hoene and Bill Lesuk scored 10 seconds apart in the first period for Los Angeles, which won its second straight game and moved past Minnesota into fifth place in the NHL West.

Bruins 5, Black Hawks 5

Derek Sanderson knocked in a Bobby Orr rebound at 16:03 of the final period to give Boston the tie. Then, Chicago's Jim Pappin drilled in a shot at the buzzer that was disallowed because time had expired.

The tie was the 14th for the Black Hawks this year and moved them within three points of Philadelphia in the NHL West

Maple Leafs 5, Seals 5

Darryl Sittler and Lanny McDonald scored goals in the third period to enable Toronto to tie and remain in a third-place tie with the Rangers in the NHL East Division.

Aeros 4, Toros 1

Gordie Howe scored his 799th career goal and added two assists for the Aeros who won their fourth straight and 15th home victory in 21 games.

Whalers 4, Knights 2

Linemates Tom Williams, Al Karlander and John French each scored and gained an assist to help entrench the Whalers atop the WHA East.

NHL East Stars

MONTREAL (UPI) — To the surprise of no one, Boston Bruin teammates Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr were unanimous choices today to the East Division team for the National Hockey League All-Star game.

Esposito, scoring goals at a better than one-a-game average at the midway point of the season in quest of his own record of 76 goals for a year, drew 120 votes as the starting center. Orr, winner of the James Norris Trophy as the league's outstanding defenseman in each of the last six years, also earned a perfect vote for his position.

Left wing Richard Martin of the Buffalo Sabres, second in the league behind Esposito in goals scored with 30, also was a unanimous choice to the East team, marking the first time in six years that as many as three players were chosen unanimously to any NHL All-Star team.

The diversified strength of the division-leading Bruins was evidenced by the voting for the All-Star game, which will be played at Chicago Jan. 29. Four members of the club led the voting at their respective positions and a fifth player, left wing Wayne Cashman, was on the second unit behind Martin.

The other two Bruins selected in the voting by East Division members of the Professional Hockey Writers Association were goaltender Gilles Gilbert with 90 points and right wing Ken Hodge with 99. Gilbert, acquired in the off-season from Minnesota, will be making his first appearance as an All-Star.

Voted to the second defensive spot alongside Orr was Brad Park of the New York Rangers with 106 votes.

Selected to back up the first unit on the East team were goaltender Dave Dryden of Buffalo, defensemen Guy Lapointe and Serge Savard of the Montreal Canadiens, center Norm Ullman of the Toronto Maple Leafs, right wing Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal and Cashman.

East Coach Scotty Bowman of the Canadiens will select another eight players to complete the squad next week.

Trade

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Blues Wednesday night traded defensemen Steve Durbano and Ab DeMarco and left wing Bob "Battleship" Kelly to the Pittsburgh Penguins for left wing Greg Polis, defenseman Bryan "Bugsy" Watson and the Penguins' second draft choice.

Cooper Leads Bowling Event

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Bobby Cooper, the touring pro from Dallas, Tex., averaged 235 pins for his 12-game winning streak and took a commanding lead at the end of the second round Wednesday in the $100,000 Showboat Invitational Bowling Tourney.

Today marks the start of the concluding elimination set for the 192-man field.

Cooper, a 29-year-old right-hander, started shooting Wednesday with a 1,451, six-game series—an average of 241—then came back with 1,639 set in the second round to put his total at 2,820. It gave him an edge of 1,159 over runner-up Roy Buckley, of Columbus, Ohio.

Cooper, whose only professional crown was the 1969 All-Star, had line scores Wednesday of 182, 232, 243, and 236, before closing with a pair of 279's in the opening session.

In the evening session he shot a 290 game, starting with a spare and winding up with 11 consecutive strikes.

Buckley, who holds a pair of PBA championships, also rolled a 290 in the second block of qualifying games. Buckley's blocks were 1,321 and 1,348.

Another 12 pins back was third placer Alex Seymore, winless veteran from Kannapolis, N. Caro Rounding out the top five—with a respective 172 and 176 pins behind the leader—were Jim Stefanich, Joliet, Ill., and Denny Torgerson, DeMoines, Iowa.

THE BRAIN TRUST — The soft spoken defensive genius of the Miami Dolphins, Bill Arnsparger wears a Giant cap Wednesday after being officially named head coach of the New York Giants. Andy Robustelli (L) new director of operations, and Wellington Mara, Giants' owner, congratulate Arnsparger on his three-year contract. (UPI)

A Giant-Size Challenge

NEW YORK (UPI) — Certainly, it could be no more than coincidence, but just moments after Bill Arnsparger was introduced as the new head coach of the New York Giants the lights went out because of a power failure.

It was power failure of another kind, along with an inability to defuse the opposition's attack, that made the signing of Arnsparger necessary. On Wednesday, to the surprise of no one, Arnsparger accepted a three-year contract to reshape and revive the faltering Giants, who won only two games all last year after turning in a perfect exhibition record.

After the light service had been restored to the midtown restaurant where the news conference was held, Arnsparger easily handled a battery of loaded questions and explained why he was giving up his relative security as defensive coordinator for the two-time Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins to take on the headaches and uncertainty of a head coach.

"I was happy in Miami and I enjoyed working with Don (Dolphin Head Coach Don Shula)," Arnsparger explained. "But I felt this was something I wanted to do under the circumstances involved."

The "circumstances," although Arnsparger wouldn't spell them out fully, include having a full say in all pertinent matters involving the club. Arnsparger implied this was the reason he took the job as Giant coach after passing up a chance as head coach of the Baltimore Colts last year.

"This is a great opportunity for me from the standpoint of being involved in all phases of football," the soft-spoken, bespectacled Arnsparger said. "That's what appeals to me—that I'll be totally involved in the whole program. That was the thing that was most important in my decision to come here."

Although the 47-year-old Arnsparger, an assistant to Shula for the last 10 years, is regarded as a defensive genius, he said he will concern himself just as deeply with offense. He reserved comment on Giant playing personnel until he has a chance to study the roster and game films.

Before he even starts, Arnsparger received a strong vote of confidence from his two bosses, club owner Wellington Mara and Director of Operations Andy Robustelli.

"I told Andy that his first job was to find a coach; all I wanted was veto power," Mara said. "It just happened that the guy he wanted and the guy I wanted were the same. We independently arrived at the same choice. So if things go wrong, I won't blame it all on Andy."

And Robustelli added: "We're going to work for him, he's not going to work for us."

Where to Plan?

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — The NFL New York Giants announced a new head coach Wednesday but they may not have a home where they expected.

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne said Wednesday a $305 million bond issue to finance construction of a northern New Jersey sports center is "in trouble" if the bonds do not go on sale today.

But, Byrne added he was hopeful that the state could still sell the revenue bonds to build the complex which would house a race track and a 76,000-seat stadium leased by the Giants.

Byrne made the remarks after an underwriters meeting scheduled for today was abruptly cancelled by the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, which is building the complex.

The meeting with six Wall Street brokerage firms, originally planned for yesterday, was postponed until today and then was cancelled without explanation.

Byrne said that if the issue failed to go on sale today, he would confer with David (Sonny) Werblin, chairman of the sports authority.

The bond issue, revalued at $305 million after the interest rate was raised to 7-½ per cent, has been delayed four times duing the past seven months.

A spokesman for the sports authority said that an explanation for the cancellation of the meeting would be made today.

The meeting was to have discussed a suit filed by East Rutherford, N.J., where the complex is planned, to challenge a moral support by the state to back the bond issue.

"I assume the statement will be on the future of the bond issue or the state of the bond issue," the spokesman said.

Calvin Wants Start

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Even in the American Basketball Association, home of the three-point goal from long field-goal range, no one can score from the bench.

And, according to Mack Calvin, it's hard to score after being on the bench.

"I can contribute more by starting," said Calvin after helping his Carolina Cougar teammates demolish the New York Nets 131-105 Wednesday night. "Ted McClain and myself are able to press and do more on defense than if we began the game on the bench."

In the rest of the ABA action, the Kentucky Colonels shaded the Denver Rockets 105-102; the Utah Stars ripped the Indiana Pacers 123-105 and the Virginia Squires trimmed the San Diego Conquistadores 116-109.

"I feel more confident as a starter," said Calvin, who has been starting for the past month. "I like to get 40-42 minutes a game."

Calvin played a game-high 42 minutes against the Nets and that's 42 more than New York would have liked him to play. Calvin, who recently was selected as an All-Star guard for the ABA East, started and finished off the Nets early.

Calvin contributed 20 points and six assists for the Cougars, who were led by Joe Caldwell's 27 points and Ted McClain's 22.

New York's John Roche had a game-high 29 points while Julius Erving chipped in with 19.

Colonels 105, Rockets 102

Artis Gilmore scored 10 points and blocked four shots in the last period, helping Kentucky over Denver and into first place.

In all, Gilmore scored a game-high 24 points to go with his 17 rebounds. Julius Keye also had 17 rebounds for the Rockets, who were led by Dave Robisch and Ralph Simpson, each with 20 points.

Stars 123, Pacers 105

Willie Wise scored 25 points and led a balanced scoring attack which carried Utah past Indiana.

The victory raised the Stars' first-place lead over Indiana to five games in the ABA West.

Squires 116, Q's 109

Virginia's George Gervin and Fatty Taylor each cashed in on two free throws down the stretch to stop San Diego's rally.

ABA Stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — The West will pit height in the backcourt and overall experience against the East's rebounding superiority and youth when they meet in the nationally-televised American Basketball Association All-Star game at Norfolk, Va. Jan 30.

Indiana center Mel Daniels, who broke in with the league when it started seven years ago and has played in every All-Star game since, was voted to him fifth straight starting assignment in nationwide balloting by sports writers and sportscasters, the ABA announced Wednesday.

George McGinnis, Indiana's powerful 6-foot 8 forward, is the youngest member of the West starting squad but he also gained the most votes. Boasting a 25.4 scoring average and a 15.1 rebounding average, both tops in the West, McGinnis garnered 66 starting team votes and a total of 135 points of a possible 138. Last Saturday, McGinnis set an ABA record with 37 rebounds against Carolina.

Two of the three Utah players selected for the team will start. Forward Willie Wise, the West's second highest scorer with a 22.7 average, will be joined on the first team by teammate Jimmy Jones, a 6-4 guard averaging 17.8 points per game. Wise, a five-year veteran, will be playing in his third All-Star game while Jones, a seven-year veteran, will be playing in his sixth.

Denver guard Warren Jabali, the league's second best playmaker with 7.0 assists per game, will be the fifth starter, playing in his fourth All-Star game in six years. Jabali, 6-2, won the MVP at last year's game in Utah.

The Hickok Belt

Since we're not a member of the Baseball Writers Association of America, we were ineligible to participate in the 1974 Baseball Hall of Fame balloting. If there is no franchise in organized baseball in your community, you cannot qualify for membership in the BWA. Ergo, one lost vote for Ralph Kiner.

We are a member in good standing of the 24th annual S. Rae Hickok "Professional Athlete of the Year" Award selections committee and our choice is O.J. Simpson, the Buffalo Bills' phenomenal former All-America running back.

• • •

The winner receives the so-called Hickok Diamond Belt, known as the $10,000 Belt, but it cannot be measured by a dollar sign. This year's Belt, for instance, cost $15,000 to make up. It is the most prestigious award in professional sports.

So, wear it well, O.J. We know you'll be No. 1 when all the returns are in.

• • •

Our picks on a 1-2-3 basis were Simpson, Henry Aaron and Tom Weiskopf. The Hickok people conduct a monthly poll of the nation's sportswriters and sportscasters. And out of the 12 nominees generally emerges the Hickok Pro Athlete of the Year.

The month-by-month winners were: January, George Foreman; February, Arnold Palmer; March, Ken Norton; April, Tommy Aaron; May, Wilbur Wood; June, Johnny Miller; July, Tom Weiskopf; August, Henry Aaron; September, Nolan Ryan.

Simpson's spectacular season earned him monthly awards in the last three months running — October, November and December.

• • •

If Henry Aaron had broken Babe Ruth's career home run record the Pro of the Year award would have gone to him no matter how many yards O.J. gained. But, it looks like an awfully good bet for 1974 doesn't it?

You ask about Larry Csonka? The Dolphin's Super Bowl super hero was among the December nominees and should be No. 1 in this month's balloting.

• • •

Let's hit the highspots among the three picks — Simpson, Aaron and Weiskopf. Simpson, the amazing running back who lifted the Bills from nowhere into Conference contention with his record-breaking rushing, shattered another mark. He is the first athlete in 24 years to win three successive months in the race for the Hickok Award.

The 25-year-old former Southern California star, 6-feet-1 and 206 pounds, demolished Jimmy Brown's 10-year-old mark by rushing 2,003 yards in a season. He also set records for most carries (332); most carries in one game (39); most games 100 yards or more rushing (11); most games 200 or more yards (3); and most yards in one game (250).

Strictly super stats for a man who already has been voted MVP in both the AFC and NFL, among many other awards.

• • •

The calendar delayed Hank Aaron's rendezvous with sports immortality — until this April at the latest. But 1973 was quite a year for the Atlanta Braves slugger.

The 39-year-old baseball smasher clouted 40 home runs, batted .301 and knocked in 96 runs, despite the fact he played in only 120 games.

Everybody in the sports world knows he fell just one homer short of tying Babe Ruth's all-time record of 714.

• • •

The No. 3 choice wasn't that simple. We chose Tom Weiskopf, the 1973 Pro Golfer of the Year, but fudged a little here because we think Johnny Miller is greater potential. And it wasn't easy to discount Nolan Ryan's pitching record for the California Angels.

Weiskopf, the 31-year-old former Ohio State star, began a brilliant streak in May and climaxed it with back-to-back victories in the British and Canadian Opens in July. He won six tournaments in 1973 and earned more than $245,000.

• • •

How can you forget Johnny Miller's miraculous 63 in the final round of the 1973 U.S. Open. It was a record round for the Open and enabled him to pass 12 players in that scorching finale at Oakmont (Pa.) Country Club, one of the most demanding golf layouts in the world.

Nolan Ryan waited until his final appearance of the season before he was able to break Sandy Koufax's modern record for strikeouts in a single season. On Sept. 28, the 26-year-old California Angels' right hander struck out 16 in 11 innings to shatter Koufax's mark by one, with 383. He finished the season with a 21-16 record.

• • •

Tommy Aaron won the April award for winning the Masters Tournament. Iron Man Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox was No. 1 in May. In February, Arnold Palmer ended 18 months of frustration to win the 90-hole Bob Hope Classic by two strokes over Jack Nicklaus. And in March, Ken Norton whupped Mohammad Ali and broke his jaw.

The January winner was George Foreman, 1968 U.S. Gold Medalist in boxing, who stunned the boxing world by demolishing Joe Frazier in less than two rounds.

Incidentally, whatever happened to George Foreman?

Maroons Drub Arlington, 71-54

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON

Bill Chaffin is turning out to be the silver lining in Kingston High's cloud of diminishing manpower. Wednesday night in the Kate Walton Field House, Chaffin stepped into a starting berth vacated by an injured John Dawson and threw in 18 points to lead the Maroons past DCSL opponent Arlington, 71-54.

Chaffin's big contribution came in the third period when he canned a dozen of his points, almost all of which came from long range:. His accuracy sparked Kingston from a dangerous three-point edge out to a more comfortable 54-40 lead at the end of the quarter. He had the Arlington coaches asking each other, "Who was that guy?" after the game.

Kingston coach Mike Rienzo would be more than happy to tell them. "I had (Duane) Carey in that spot before he quit the team," Rienzo said afterwards. "But Billy did a beautiful job tonight just like he did in Beacon."

Before the Maroons salvaged the game, however, two separate dramas had transpired. The first one provided Rienzo with what he called, "The biggest lead of my life."

Seemingly fully recovered from Monday's exhausting game with the Bulldogs of Beacon, Kingston came out running in the first period, put 16 straight points on the board, and looked like it was going to run the Admirals out of the gym in shame. Ray Gay dumped in 13 points in the first eight minutes, and it could well have been a shutout quarter had not Bill Southworth broke the spell with a pair of foul shots. KHS ended the period leading 26-9.

"I was sorry to see that foul shot go in," Rienzo said. "I knew we'd get tired sometime."

Sometime turned out to be the second quarter as the Admirals, almost incredibly, climbed back into the game.

With Skip Farrier, the game's top scorer with 24 points, and Scott Gleckel connecting steadily, Arlington chipped away. The visitors filtered through a stagnant defense and even managed a few offensive rebounds to help things along. The gap was down to eight when the half ended, and Farrier made it three with two quick buckets in the third period.

Kim Anderson and Cory Chambers began to clog up the middle in the second half. That helped a lot because the Maroons were too tired to run anymore and their deliberate offense was not enough in itself. Anderson finished with 19 rebounds, and Chambers had 17 as the Maroons dominated the backboards.

Did Kingston stagger in that second period without any help from the Admirals? Arlington coach Bill Ketcham thought so.

"Our only adjustment was to go from a man-to-man to a 3-2. They had a little trouble shooting over that and maybe with our zone press, but otherwise it didn't make much difference."

Ketcham continued, "We're still disorganized on offense. We have shooters, but we run around crazy getting to spots. Overall I'm pleased, though. After Beacon, Kingston and Poughkeepsie, we're in the league with everybody else."

Kingston's third game this week features tough Newburgh in the Field House, and Rienzo's not exactly looking forward to it.

"We're down to seven-and-a-half men," he said referring to a sprained ankle incurred by Chaffin in the game, "and Chambers is still not 100 per cent. He got hurt in that Beacon game too.

Three games in a week is too much for a high school team," he sighed.

The Maroons' casualty list now includes Lou Eccleston, who'll be out another two weeks with a sprained ankle. Dawson, who suffered a broken nose against Beacon and is indefinite for Friday, and Chambers and Chaffin, who will hopefully be ready for the Goldbacks.

Kingston's JV' won their sixth straight in the preliminary game, 77-65.

It's Heartbreak Alley for Sawyers

By DON TREAT

SAUGERTIES

The Heartbreak Kids did it again! Saugerties High led Ketcham here 56-53 with 31 seconds left Wednesday and lost 57-56.

Sawyer coach Larry Marcus is about ready to call in a witch doctor to break the curse on his ballclub.

After Scott Hunter scored to give Saugerties the three point lead, Mark Esser hit to make it a one point margin and then Marc Cornell drove the baseline for the winning bucket with two seconds showing.

The Sawyers called for time and set up a play which resulted in Larry Panella hoisting up a 40-foot shot that fell short at the buzzer.

"We just stopped thinking in those last two minutes," moaned Marcus. "We aren't a good clutch team."

Missed opportunities and two lapses were the key elements that made the difference. Both John Speirs and Arnie Hackett missed on one and one situations at the foul line when Saugerties led 54-51 with under two minutes to go.

After Esser's basket made it 56-55, the Sawyers threw away the inbounds pass. Then they committed the cardinal sin of allowing Cornell to get inside along the baseline.

"Our offense worked well," said Marcus. "We had open shots all night.

Despite its open shots, Saugerties had trouble finding the hoop. The Sawyers shot at a 31 per cent clip from the floor and a dismal 52 per cent at the foul line.

Esser paced the Indians' attack with 18 points and Kevin Murphy had 15. Murphy picked the team up considerably in the second period when he came in off the bench.

Saugerties was threatening to break it open at the time, but super sub Murphy's five points were instrumental in Ketcham erasing a nine-point lead. The score was deadlocked at 34 when halftime arrived.

In the opening period, the Sawyers rode the hot hand of Hunter. He scored eight of his 16 points while Saugerties built a lead that reached 10 before Ketcham brought it back to 21-14 at the close of the stanza.

Arnie Hackett worked the Indians over from the inside while Hunter did the job outside. Hackett also did the bulk of his damage early though, as nine of 12 points came in the first half.

Marcus was well satisfied with the floor game of guard Gary Schnell. "He played his best game ever."

Schnell passed superbly at times but everyone will remember that one bad one. It was he who threw it away to set up the winning bucket.

The last two games have gone well for the Sawyers until the end. Playing at home is usually an advantage, but don't tell Saugerties that.

Marcus may ask to have all his games on the road from now on and preferably at John Jay. The Sawyers' only two wins over the past two seasons have come against the Patriots at Wiccopee.

A road game awaits the snake-bitten Sawyers on Friday night. The next chapter of the Saugertiesian tragedy will unfold in Poughkeepsie against Lourdes.

With a 1-5 DCSL mark, the Sawyers will be hoping to escape the cellar and head toward respectability.

Ketcham, 32, draws the tough Beacon Bulldogs in a home game Friday.

The Sawyer JV's continued their losing ways, bowing 48-34.

Phelps Confident

By United Press International

Digger Phelps says he isn't worried and doesn't plan any tricks when his second-ranked Notre Dame squad takes on powerhouse UCLA Saturday.

"I've played against them four times, and I'm not worrying about their game," Phelps said. "We've got to take a positive approach to the game. We don't have 87 straight, but we've got nine, and all of our nine are this year."

By the time the top-ranked Bruins meet Notre Dame in the nationally-televised clash, they probably won't have 87 straight anymore. They'll probably have 88.

Iowa will be UCLA's sparring partner tonight and Bill Walton, still nursing pains in his back from a muscle bruise, will probably see limited action. Walton, twice Player of the Year, is expected to be pretty much himself by Saturday afternoon's awaited showdown.

But Phelps still isn't worried.

"We're playing UCLA, not Walton," Phelps said. "The kid may get 25 or 30 points. He's got that capability. Our job is to try to hold the other guys down.

"The guy I always respected, who keeps them together, is Keith Wilkes. Against Maryland, he fouls out with 3:31 to go and Maryland gets right back in the game. Against North Carolina State, Walton is in foul trouble, and Wilkes gets 27 points and in one stretch when they were losing he got six straight points.

"Wilkes is one of the most underestimated players in the country."

Phelps will scout the UCLA-Iowa contest, but said he did not expect to learn anything.

"We're not going to try any tricks. We're not going to slow it down. We're just going to play our game."

In action Wednesday night, fifth-ranked North Carolina whipped ACC rival Wake Forest 95-78. Davidson upset 13th-ranked South Carolina 70-59, 20th-ranked Syracuse defeated Canisius 87-74, Villanova downed Detroit 80-67, Duke beat Clemson 63-50 and Depaul beat Marshall 76-68.

Olympian Bobby Jones hit 18 points Wednesday night to lead fifth-ranked North Carolina to an easy win over Wake Forest. North Carolina took a 47-38 halftime edge and built its margin to as much as 19 points in the second half before going to its four-corners offense when the Deacons pulled to within 10 points with just over four minutes to play.

The victory gave the Tar Heels a 3-0 mark to lead the ACC along with third ranked North Carolina State and the victory boosted the North Carolina season mark to 11-1. Wake Forest fell to 0-3 in the conference and to 7-5 overall.

John O'Donnell added 17 points for the Tar Heels.

Hurley Junior Hockey Scores

In the opening game of the Hurley Hockey Association, a last second goal by Dave Lange, his second of the game, enabled the Sabres to edge the Blues, 5-4 in a junior age game.

In the Mite division, (6-8 years), Brian Caragher's four goals paced the Bruins to a come-from behind 4-2 win over the Blakhawks.

In Pee Wee matches, the Flyees outskated the Flames, 7-4, and the Flames returned to dump the Leafs, 4-2. The Mite division saw the Wings and Rangers in a 2-2 tie and the Hawks blanking the Kings 7-0.

Kev McLane and John Markes scored for the Sabres. Pat McNamara had two goals, Glenn Marrus and Jim Rosa, one each for the Blues. Early goals by Dave Boucher and Mike Yonta accounted for the Hawks scoring. Goalie Billy Hughes of the Hawks and Pat Hoey of the Bruins both played outstanding games.

Ted Hoffstatter scored four times for the Flyers and brother Jeff tallied twice. The 'Flames' Dave Douglas had the hat trick in both games.

Tim Yarter scored twice for the Wings, while Ranger scorers were Hunter Cranfield and Keith Douglas. Goalie Bill Hughes recorded the shutout for the Hawks and Dave Boucher had four goals.

KHS Skiers Capture Third Straight Win

PATTERSON

Coach Tony Badalato sees depth as the reason for Kingston High's current success in the Tri County Ski League. So does Brewster.

Wednesday at Big Birch, host Brewster almost stood by and watched as the Maroons captured seven of the first ten positions and glided off to their third straight win by a 284.7 to 311.3 margin.

Jim Hanstein went through the gates in 70.3 seconds to edge teammate Bob Abramsky for first place by a tenth of a second. Don Boyce and Tripp Ingalsbe completed a sweep of the top four for Kingston.

"Ken Burgess did not have a good day," said Badalato, "but Ingalsbe took up the slack." Badalato noted little difference in Kingston's top four racers and cited Ingalsbe and the Speismans, Randy and Tom, as providing the key depth.

Burgess ran sixth against Brewster tying Randy's 73.3 time. Tom was a tenth of a second back in eighth place.

Nine Months for Priddy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former New York Yankee infielder Jerry Priddy was sentenced to nine months in prison Wednesday for attempting to extort $250,000 on threat of setting off bombs on a cruise ship.

U.S. District Court Judge Irving Hill, in pronouncing sentence, said the 54-year-old Priddy had lived an exemplary life in the community and had no previous criminal record.

Hill said, however, that he had to weigh those facts against a threat to men, women and children aboard a ship at sea.

Priddy was released on $150,000 bond pending an appeal which defense attorney Paul Caruso filed immediately after sentencing.

The one-time major leaguer, whose 11 years in baseball also included stretches with the Washington Senators, Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Browns, was found guilty by a federal jury on Dec. 10.

Priddy was accused of telephoning warnings last June to the Princess Lines that four timed explosives were aboard the liner Island Princess off the coast of Mexico.

A search of the vessel turned up "suspicious packages" and they were thrown overboard.

During his trial, Priddy admitted making the threatening calls to the steamship line demanding the $250,000.

He said he did so because a mysterious, unknown man telephoned him and told him that he and his family would be maimed or killed if he did not carry out the extortion plot.

Officials' Corner

(This column is provided by the Central Hudson Valley Board of International Association of Approved Basketball Officials as an aid to fans)

QUESTION—What is kicking the ball?

ANSWER—Kicking the ball is striking it intentionally with the knee or any part of the leg or foot below the knee. It is the fundamental of basketball that it must be played with the hands.

Kicking the ball is a violation only when:

1) A player, intentionally, kicks the ball with his knee or any part of his leg below the knee. This may be an offensive or defensive maneuver.

2) A player, intentionally, places his knee or any part of his leg below the knee in front of the ball to stop a low throw, or other defensive maneuver.

3) A player kicks the ball to prevent an opponent from reaching it.

NOTE: An accidental kick of the ball is not a violation.

PLAY: Player A, while dribbling, unintentionally kicks the ball which strikes B in the leg, who is closely guarding A. The ball rebounds towards A who starts a new dribble.

RULING: No violation. Kicking of the ball is a violation when the act is positive. Accidentally striking the ball with the foot or leg is no violation.

Salt Walther Comes Back All Way From 'the Dead'

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Salt Walther, you may remember, was burned pretty badly.

He was more dead than alive when they had to cut the dash away to pull him out of his car after they finally got the Indianapolis 500 started last May and then he nearly died all over again in the hospital later on when his kidneys failed.

Salt Walther is a big, good-looking kid out of Dayton, Ohio, the kind you can't help liking right away.

His father, George Walther, Sr., is president of the Dayton-Walther firm, an outfit which does $300 million a year making wheels and other equipment for trailer trucks, but the 26-year-old Salt, whose square name is David, never cared to be just another rich man's son.

He preferred working for a living and making it on his own and he appreciated the responsibility he had been entrusted with when chosen to drive the snazzy McLaren-Offy his father's firm put up the money for in last year's Indianapolis 500.

There wasn't much left of the car after it was bumped by another one and burst into a tremendous ball of fire last May 28.

There really wasn't that much left of Salt Walther.

He was burned so seriously, he spent two months at the University of Michigan's special Burn Center in Lansing, Mich.

He had to have skin grafts over the entire back of both legs. All his finger-tips were burned off — "I don't have to do my nails now"—and the thumb of his left hand eventually was amputated. His right wrist required a skin graft of its own and his left hand was cooked practically to the bone.

Salt Walther was 198 pounds when he drove in last year's Indy 500.

He was down to 148 when he was released from the hospital two months later and looked, according to one eye-witness, like "a walking ghost."

This past Monday Salt Walther got back into a racing car for the first time since last May 28.

He got into a McLaren at the Ontario Motor Speedway in Ontario, Calif., to test tires for Goodyear Monday, and did the same thing again Tuesday, reaching a speed of 186 mph that was better than such other drivers on the track, such as Bill Vukovich, Wally Dallenbach and Roger McCluskey, could manage.

Was he at all frightened, the last bit apprehensive, getting back in a car for the first time again?

ALL THE WAY BACK — Salt Walther (L) and his crew chief, Tom Smith (R) getting ready for Ontario, Calif., 500 on March 10. Walther came close to being killed at Indianapolis last May 28 when his car flipped over and caught fire, burning most of Walther's body. (UPI)

"No, not really," says Salt Walther.

Then he stops a moment, and laughs.

"Hell, yeah, I was..." he owns up, not laughing so much anymore. "When I first got into the car again Monday morning, I was a little scared, but after three, four laps, it was no big deal anymore.

"Some people, you know, say you're 'chicken' or not being a man if you show fear. Well, let 'em get behind the wheel and run down that straightaway doing 200. Then let 'em see what they say."

Salt Walther turned the first three laps at a nice "conservative" 150 mph Monday.

Tom Smith, his crew chief, checked the cylinders 20 minutes later and Walther went out again and hit 165. Then 179...185.1...and finally 186 Tuesday morning.

When Walther finished Monday, he was so happy, he called Phil Cole, the PR director for his father's outfit in Dayton.

"I was nervous as hell," he bubbled over. "You don't come that close to being killed (at Indianapolis) without being nervous the next time you go out there. I wondered if my hands would work right? I wondered if the courage would still be there? Maybe coming back after eight months is a little too fast, but if I waited too much longer, the season would be underway and I want to compete on the circuit and at Indy this year. There wasn't the tiniest problem though. Everything went perfectly."

Salt Walther has seen last May's crack-up more than 50 times now by means of a projector he has in the recreation room of his home in Dayton.

"There's one thing I'd like to clear up," he says. "A lot of people seem to think A.J. Foyt hit me just before all the trouble at Indy last May. I've looked at the accident many times on film, and whether I got bumped or not, nobody can really say. It's unfair to blame A.J. Foyt, and it's time that people get off him for that."

A.J. Foyt also was at Ontario these past two days, and Salt Walther made it a point to seek him out. It was the first chance he had to talk with him since the crack-up.

Salt Walther told A.J. Foyt what he thought. He told him it wasn't his fault at all.

Uhl Rims 34 in YMCA Debut

KINGSTON — Jumpin' Joe Uhl made his presence felt in the opening game of the YMCA Winter League season by pouring through 34 points to lead Artie's Bar to a 89-50 drubbing of Corner Rest.

In other "A" league tilts, Lowe's Pool dumped Bud's Subshop 54-46, Acker's Bar swamped Sprtsmen's Grill 65-38 and Corner Rest hung on to edge Bud's Subshop 67-63.

Uhl's scoring feat was closely followed by teammate Coleman Link's 28 points. Link also hauled down 35 rebounds.

Harry Brink scored 15 for the beleagured losers who were outscored in all four quarters.

Lowe's balanced scoring paved the way for its victory, as Ron Burris, Joe Brown and Mike Jordan each had 15 points. Vino Platts had 15 in a losing cause and Rocky Johnson was Bud's only other double figure man with 11.

A 23-point performance by Scott Miller combined with tough defense and strong rebounding did the trick for Acker's. Matty Rogan's 13 points and 12 by Dave Whitaker also helped the winning cause.

Joe Bush with 17 and Dennis Gale with 11 were high men for Sportsmen's, which had an early lead before Acker's took charge.

In the most hard-fought contest of the young season, Corner Rest survived a late rally by Bud's to register its first win.

Skip Lyons and Harry Brink paced the winners with 19 and 18 points respectively. Tom Barton also hit double figures with 12.

Bud's nearly pulled it out, but even Rocky Johnson's sparkling 27-point effort wasn't enough. Teammate Richard Bullock scored 16.

Beacon, Comets Holding Firm

KINGSTON — The most predictable thing about the current high school basketball season has been the New York State Sports Writers Associaton ratings. The No. 1 schools remained the same this week, as did the spots in the top 20 held by Fallsburgh and Beacon.

Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Ellenville, Liberty, Spackenkill and Rhinebeck remained honorable mention. One change was the elevation of DCSL Bi-Valley leading Oakwood to the No. 15 small school position.

Overlooked: U. S. Davis Cup Debacle

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — In all the hullabaloo of Super Bowl week-end, one of the season's most significant sports stories went virtually unnoticed — a victim of underexposure.

Little Colombia eliminated the United States in the preliminary rounds of the Davis Cup tennis competition.

To tennis buffs, of which there are now mushrooming millions, it was David slaying Goliath, Jack chopping down the beanstalk and Dekalb County Junior High upsetting the Miami Dolphins.

To those whose business it is to assess such disasters and discern trends, it posed a serious question:

Is the Davis Cup, after 74 years of serving as the resplendant centerpiece of international tennis, heading toward its demise?

The answer: Probably — and too bad.

Since Dwight Davis, Harvard University socialite, purchased the silver bowl from a Boston jeweler and put it up for grabs in 1900, the Davis Cup has been the symbol of world court supremacy.

When time came to play Colombia in Bogota, on clay in a 1½ mile altitude, Captain Dennis Ralston sent out invitations to all of Uncle Sam's top players.

Stan Smith, the country's best, begged off until competition got tougher. Jimmy Connors, co-No. 1 with Smith, took a trip to Australia. Arthur Ashe was busy. Tom Gorman and Cliff Richey both were suffering injuries of a sort. Marty Riessen and Bob Lutz felt they were not in the best of shape.

Most said, "Sorry, other commitments."

So the job was given to a pair of plucky youngsters — Erik van Dillen, a doubles specialist, and Harold Solomon, No. 15. They got creamed, 4 to 1. So Uncle Sam must sit out the Davis Cup until 1975.

Some of the blame for this shocking reversal can be laid to smugness, overconfidence and lack of planning by the U. S. tennis brass. Much of it can be attributed to tennis' current sad state of affairs.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

TEACHER: (Q.) I'm 14 but look older like, say 17 or 18. My problem is my student teacher. He is 20 and told us we can talk to him openly, any time. He is really quite friendly. The other day he asked me out. I didn't give him an answer.

Yesterday he asked again. I told him I'd think about it. I want to say yes but I don't know if I should.—Twice in Connecticut.

(A.) A 20-year-old student teacher should not have dates with a 14-year-old student of his. This would be very unprofessional on his part, and besides he is much too old for 14-year-olds.

Keep saying no. If he insists, talk to your parents about him.

ONE-WAY: (Q.) My mother thinks it is improper for me to go over to my boyfriend's house even though he can come over to mine. He is 15 and I am 14.

I would like to have your opinion.—Daughter of an Old-Fashioned Mother in Maine.

(A.) You should both visit one another, but only when a parent or parents are present in the home being visited, and when the parent or parents have made it clear that a guest is welcome at the time.

Sometimes it's inconvenient for a family to have guests.

When you play the Jacoby transfer you use Stayman along with it. The form of Stayman we use is what we call very non-forcing, in that the two-club response requires the opener to rebid two diamonds unless he has a four-card major. If he holds two four-card majors he bids the better one.

South has a bad hand with four hearts and five spades. He doesn't like to leave his partner in one notrump and playing the Jacoby form of Stayman he can afford to bid two clubs. He intends to pass if North bids either major but North bids two diamonds whereupon South goes to two spades and plays the hand there.

Why does he use Stayman and not a transfer to two spades? Because if his partner does hold four hearts he wants to have the hand play in that suit instead of spades.

The play at two spades is simple and successful. Soth wins the diamond lead in dummy and plays a trump. West wins and can hold South to his contract if he shifts to his doubleton heart and East ducks. Otherwise, South will score an overtrick by losing just one club, one heart and two trumps.

Tomorrow we'll show how to respond with a good hand and 5-4 in the majors.

Mideast Withdrawal Agreement Is Close

JERUSALEM (AP) — An agreement to separate Israeli and Egyptian forces along the Suez Canal is about 90 per cent complete and none of the obstacles remaining is a "gut issue," a high-ranking U.S. official said after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returned from more talks with the Egyptians.

Meanwhile, it was reported, Israel, Egypt, the United States and the Soviet Union will issue a joint communique at 3 p.m. today announcing an agreement on a troop disengagement formula for the Suez Canal battlefront.

The officials said the statement will be released simultaneously in Jerusalem, Cairo, Washington and Moscow. They gave no details on the substance of the agreement.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban conceded after talking with Kissinger Wednesday night that the American mediator had made "certain progress" on his latest visit to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. But he cautioned that there remained "some substantial points to be clarified."

Israel's first snowstorm of the winter delayed the resumption of Kissinger's talks with Israeli leaders an hour today. Security guards decided Jerusalem's traffic was too chaotic because of the slushy streets for Kissinger to venture out of the King David Hotel, so army jeeps brought Deputy Premier Yigal Allon, Eban and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan to him.

Egyptian newspapers wrote of a disengagement agreement today in terms that also indicated one was near.

"The wording and clauses of each provision will be clear and precise in such a way as to avoid ambiguity or misinterpretation by any of the parties," said Al Gomhouriya.

"Each of the Israeli pullback stages will be implemented according to a timetable and will stipulate minute details on the transport of equipment and thinnng out of Israel troops, the number of these forces and the knds of weapons."

However, no one gave any indication of how the various points of disagreement previously reported were being resolved.

These include Israel's demand that Egyptian forces on the east bank of the canal be reduced and rocket and antiaircraft missile launchers on that side of the waterway be removed. Also included is Egypt's insistence that Israel commit itself to the position that its withdrawal of troops from the canal is the first step in a withdrawal from other occupied Arab territory.

Meanwhile, Premier Golda Meir's Israeli government was under fire at home. Its chief political opposition, the right-wing Likud bloc that made sizable gains in the general election New Year's Eve, charged that the government was negotiating a "one-sided retreat of our forces, not disengagement."

Editorials in Israeli newspapers were also largely critical.

U.S. officials mentioned the possibility of private unwritten understandings between the two sides, and many Israelis believed these might include an Egyptian promise to end the formal state of war against Israel that has been in existence since the 1948 Palestine war. But the Israeli government has been under pressure from critics not to accept verbal promises from the Egyptians, even if guaranteed by the Americans.

MUSICAL WELCOME — Vice-President Gerald R. Ford is all smales as he listens to Meral Saglor (foreground playing the flute) and others of the Creston High School Band that was on hand in Grand Rapids, Mich., to welcome him home. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Vice President Ford Is Welcomed Home

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Just over three months ago friends and constituents said goodbye to Congressman Gerald R. Ford at the end of a routine visit to his home district.

Today they greeted him with a proclamation saying, "Jerry, Our Vice President, Come Home," as Ford made his first visit back to Grand Rapids since he was sworn in Dec. 6 as the nation's 40th vice president.

Former mayors of Grand Rapids dating back over the 25 years that Ford served in the House lined up along with a high school band to meet Ford and his wife, Betty, at the Kent County Airport when they arrived aboard an Air Force plane late Wednesday night.

About 200 persons showed up in below freezing weather for the event, one with a placard reading: "The Grand Old Party's Mr. Clean."

Ford's aides billed the trip as a "sentimental journey." But politics were also on the agenda with a private reception scheduled for "several hundred Republican leaders and campaign contributors," according to the announcement.

The timing of the visit also coincides with the election Tuesday of State Sen. Robert VanderLaan as the GOP nominee to succeed to Ford's 5th District House seat. VanderLaan beat out three other candidates for the nomination and will face Democrat Richard VanderVeen in the special Feb. 18 election. VanderLaan flew to Washington Wednesday and then returned to Grand Rapids with the Ford Party.

To help pay for the day-long tribute a "Jerry Ford Committee" put a tab of $12.50 a plate on a dinner at the Calvin College fieldhouse and lined up Michigan Gov. William Milliken and Rep. Elford A. Cederberg, the new dean of the state's GOP House delegation, to pay tribute to Ford.

The 60-year-old Ford was scheduled to visit South Middle High School which was called South High School when he enrolled in seventh grade in September, 1925, and from which he was graduated in June, 1931.

Heath Seeks Economic Accord in Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath called a cabinet meeting today to discuss Britain's crippling economic crisis and consider seeking a new mandate in national elections.

Government officials said Heath's decision on whether to dissolve Parliament and call general elections might be made at the morning cabinet session.

"The uncertainty must be ended soon — but without panic," Home Secretary Robert Carr said. "There must not be a snap general election without first trying everything possible to solve this crisis."

Officials said Heath might invite leaders of the 10 million-member Trades Union Congress (TUC), the British version of America's AFL-CIO, to meet him for one final attempt to end the crisis.

If Heath fails to reach an accord—and political analysts said his chances were poor—he would have little alternative, but to dissolve Parliament and appeal to the nation for a new mandate.

Britain's economic crisis—described by Heath as the worst since World War II—was caused by a series of crucial union disputes intesified by worldwide fuel shortages.

The 269,000 coal miners have refused to work overtime for two months and the 29,000 railroad engineers have staged a month-long slowdown punctuated by two 24-hour strikes.

A poll in today's Daily Telegraph said Heath's Conservative party would win by two per cent if national election were held tomorrow.

The worker disputes, aimed at winning wage hikes in excess of Heath's anti-inflation guidelines, have led to the imposition of a three-day work week in Britain, with nearly 1 million laborers laid off.

Several developments Wednesday heightened the crisis:

—The TUC, at a special meeting of leaders of 100 member unions, overwhelmingly agreed to back the coal miners in any all-out confrontation with the government.

—The ailing pound crashed to its lowest level in history. At one time, it plunged to $2.16 dollars, although recovering slightly to $2.18 later in the day. Less than a year ago, it was worth $2.50.

Tense Situation in China Sea

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese naval vessels shadowed Chinese gunboats today off the disputed Paracel islands in the South China Sea, military spokesmen said.

Government sources said 18 Chinese fishermen had landed on the string of islands under the protection of two Chinese gunboats.

On the battlefield, South Vietnamese troops, backed by fighter-bombers, helicopters and artillery, slowly battled their way through North Vietnamese forces encircling a government base in the Central Highlands.

The Saigon command reported 121 North Vietnamese killed during the government advance on Le Minh, 225 miles north of Saigon. Three government soldiers were reported wounded in the heaviest fighting of 1974.

In Cambodia, rebel troops on the outskirts of Phnom Penh fired a half-dozen Soviet-built rockets into the capital and its environs Wednesday night and today, killing at least five persons and wounding 16.

The rocket attacks Wednesday were the heaviest since the beginning of the insurgents' five-week-old dry season offensive. The attacks today caused no damage or injuries.

In Saigon, the military command said government gunboats were ordered to monitor the movements of Chinese ships off the Paracel islands.

"The South Vietnamese ships have been ordered to watch the actions of the Chinese vessels in that area," a command spokesman said. "Any further orders will be given by government officials."

Despite the tense situation, there appeared little chance of a direct military action between the two nations, both of which claim the tiny island archipelago.

Military sources said the South Vietnamese warships—which range up to the size of a U.S. Coast Guard cutter, about 300 feet long—were staying at least 500 yards away from the Chinese boats, as required by international law.

The Paracels group is about equidistant from the South Vietnamese coast and the Chinese island of Hainan. The only inhabitants are a South Vietnamese military garrison.

Two 'Hitch' Car Ride After Airplane Crashes

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Two men hitched a car ride to the Tompkins County Airport Wednesday night after they walked away from the nearby spot where their aircraft crashed, State Police said.

Troopers said the two-engine aircraft crashed in a wooded area about one-half mile north of the airport. The men were identified as John Barney, 34, the pilot, and Emil Haller, 41, both of Ithaca.

The plane was landing when it crashed near the airport, police said. The men walked away from the crash scene to an airport road and were picked up by a passing motorist, who took them to the airport.

Both men were taken to an Ithaca hospital where they were reported in good condition Thursday morning.

Police said there was fog and freezing rain at the time of the crash.

Barney's address is 12 Stormy View. Haller's is 211 Ridgedale Road.
